

Pest Problems Bug Residents

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

"Can you come in an unmarked car? I don't want the neighbors to know I've got bugs!"

That urgent plea is pretty much a thing of the past, most local exterminators agree, although some people still insist on keeping their bugs a secret.

The exterminator's image is changing, owing in part to the ecology movement and concern with cleaning up the environment. Some people even consider it a status symbol to have the exterminator drive up.

Get Rid of Them

"People are more conscious of the pest problem," said Chuck T. Seckman of Alladin Termite and Pest Control. "They realize insects are dirty and germ carriers. Their prime concern is to get rid of them."

Having bugs in the house "doesn't bother some people at all," said Robert J. Dickson of Dickson Pest Control. "But others think it's a crime that they've got a bug in the house. Even one! And they don't want their neighbors to know."

Leo F. Dolen of Hari-Kari Exterminating Co. observed that "it's not the upper class that complains" about having the bug truck appear in their driveways. "It's the middle class and even the lower class."

Shame to Keep Them

Dolen maintained it's nothing to be ashamed of to have bugs. "Rather," he said, "it's a shame to keep them."

More awareness about bugs, said George Preece of Mid-State Pest Control, also stems from "people moving from the South to the North, and they're used to that sort of thing. The ecology bit, you know."

Preece, who said he believes he's the only exterminator in Lincoln with a degree in entomology (the science that deals with insects), agreed that some people consider hiring an exterminator a status symbol.

Status or no, "People are as bugged today as before" by bugs if not moreso, said Jerry E. Bailey of Orkin Exterminating Co.

Increased Concern

The increased concern, Dickson said, is also "due to the more modern houses that are air conditioned and maintain an even temperature," allowing bugs to survive longer.

Seckman agreed, saying "Most insects that we have have adapted themselves from outside living to inside living," presenting more problems as people tend to live closer together in apartments.

"I think there's more bugs around Lincoln now than there was when I started 15-16-17 years ago," Dolen said.

He attributed the rise to society's increasing mobility. People carry bugs when they move, other bugs travel in shipping boxes, and even transfer trucks carry them, he pointed out.

Land Office Business

And "we're all doing a land-office business to get rid of 'em," he said.

Killing those pesky bugs, though, is harder than it was yesterday, the exterminators noted. They said tighter government regulations restricting the use of more and more chemicals are making the exterminator's job harder.

Seckman said the gradual elimination of use of some reliable chemicals causes the exterminator to return more often for applications, which in turn costs the customer more.

And the regulations make it increasingly more difficult to control rats, Dickson said. "In time we're going to have quite a rat population that we can't control" because of the outlawed chemicals, he said.

Rats, he said, are thriving in a sewer haven, getting fat on garbage poured there from restaurant disposals, for example, and which doesn't wash away.

Dolen told a story about a rat that crawled up through a sewer pipe to a second floor of a house. When the rat emerged in a toilet stool and peered up at the resident, "it scared the old guy to death," Dolen said.

Rat Drowned

The rat wouldn't drink any of the arsenic-soaked water Dolen prepared for it. ("He was too waterlogged.") He said he finally drowned the rat in the stool.

A day in the life of a pest controller can be amusing, too. "We get a possum in the basement sometimes," Dolen said.

Bailey said he gets quite a few bat calls, mostly in attics. "Also skunks and snakes, mostly under houses."

Preece said he also got a call to exterminate a bat from a motel last month. Asked if he got rid of it, he replied smugly. "Yep."

LUNAR TREK IS LAST

Cernan, Schmitt Uncover 'Spirit Of Peace' Plaque

Space Center, Houston (AP) — Man walked on the moon for perhaps the last time in the 20th century early Thursday and as two American astronauts ended their exploration, they uncovered a plaque that said "may the spirit of peace in which we came be reflected in the lives of all mankind."

Navy Capt. Eugene A. Cernan, 38, and civilian geologist Harrison H. Schmitt, 37, made the declaration before boarding the lunar ship Challenger for the last time.

They also professed a hope that they would not be the last moon explorers, that man at some future time would return to the alien world, and perhaps find the plaque attached to one of Challenger's landing legs.

And they dedicated a lunar rock to 79 foreign science students watching on television at Mission Control. They said pieces of the rock would be distributed to nations around the world as a symbol "that we can live in peace and harmony."

And Cernan thanked the thousands of aerospace workers who helped make the Apollo program possible and then, with reference to God, he said, "If He's listening, I'd like to thank Him too."

And then the two explorers finished loading the treasure of Taurus-Littrow aboard Challenger as the world for perhaps the last time in decades had an opportunity to see men working on the moon.

Cernan and Schmitt had come as ambassadors of planet Earth. But they looked like anything but Earthlings as they prowled in their bubble space suits — suits blackened by the dust of the volcanic valley.

The third member of the Apollo 17 crew, Navy Cmdr. orbiting the moon 60 miles overhead as he has during the three days of exploration. Cernan and Schmitt are scheduled to blast away from the moon Thursday afternoon and rejoin him in the command ship America.

The lunar car, which had transported Cernan and Schmitt more than 20 miles over the cratered, boulder-strewn valley, was parked several hundred feet away. A camera mounted on the car relayed one of Schmitt's final actions — the tossing of a hammer that sailed far away in the one-sixth gravity field of the moon.

The camera then showed the astronauts as they climbed aboard Challenger at 12:25 a.m. EST Thursday.

Thus ended the last and most scientifically rewarding exploration on the lunar surface.

Throughout the day, as the hours of the excursion ticked away, observers at Mission Control became more and more aware that a historic period in exploration, in man's quest for the unknown, was ending.

Scientists at Mission Control were counting the blessings of Apollo 17 — nearly 200 pounds of rocks, the discovery of an orange dust on Tuesday that may be young volcanic material and a nuclear-powered science station that will relay data for years.

Only one instrument, a gravity wave detector, failed to work properly.

Other observers will cherish the memorable television pictures, the last from the moon for some time, relayed during the final exploration.

Cernan standing part way up a slope on a 7,000-foot mountain Wednesday night and declaring as he gazed back at Taurus-Littrow valley:

"When we finish tonight we will have covered this whole valley from corner to corner."

Schmitt, a trained geologist realizing a dream, chipping rocks from giant house-size boulders, hoping for another scientific bonanza like the orange dust of Tuesday. Then commenting, with unscientific language: "Boy, these are big boulders up here."

Cernan preparing to mount their moon taxi with a shout of "Off to the Sculptured Hills," which Schmitt described as looking "like the wrinkled face of a 100-year-old man."

Schmitt kicking a rock down hill and imploring it: "Look, I'd roll down this slope, why don't you?" And later, pretending to ski downhill, faking a stem christie and saying, "It's a little hard to get a hip rotation."

Cernan hopping along with the declaration, "I can cover ground like a kangaroo."

They ran late in their rock collecting and Mission Control directed them to skip their final planned stop, a crater named Sherlock.

Back at the Challenger, the astronauts uncovered the plaque, which Cernan described:

"To commemorate Apollo 17's visit to the valley of Taurus-Littrow, and as an everlasting commemorative of what the real meaning of Apollo is for the world, we'd like to uncover a plaque that has been on the leg of our spacecraft."

"When this picture is seen again by others they will know where it all started," he said. "The words are 'Here man completed his first exploration of the moon, December, 1972, A.D. May the spirit of peace in which we came be reflected in the lives of all mankind.'"

Exon, Officials Discuss State College Proposal

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Gov. J. James Exon and seven officials of the state college system had "a frank discussion" Wednesday about the proposed Southeast Nebraska State College.

After the two-hour luncheon, Exon said he reached no conclusion on the plan's feasibility saying he will remain neutral until he receives a formal recommendation from the State College Board of Trustees.

Exon said the discussion, which included trustees J. Alan Cramer of Wayne and Robert Walker of Kearney, revealed no indication on how the board might act on the proposal by Peru State College's Acting President Dr. Max Smith to create an eight-county state college district with two main campuses at Peru and Beatrice.

No Unanimity

"Contrary to previous reports, I found there certainly wasn't unanimity of thought on the matter among the trustees or the four college presidents."

"During the discussion, it became obvious that a majority of the board members are going to have to have more information before they approve the idea," Exon stated.

The governor also reiterated his previous feelings that the concept of a Southeast Nebraska State College further points to the need for some coordinating board for post-secondary education.

Bill Likely

"By next July we're going to have to have some kind of a board over higher education or else stand the distinct possibility of losing federal funds for higher education," he said. Under a recent federal law (the Pell Bill), states must have coordinating bodies directing higher education. Presumably, there will be such a bill.

Instances Of London Flu Confirmed In Five Cities

Atlanta, Ga. (AP) — Isolated cases of an influenza virus called London flu have been confirmed in five U.S. cities, the National Center for Disease Control reports.

The virus, a strain of Type A influenza, has been diagnosed in Memphis, Tenn.; Kansas City, Kan.; Baltimore, Md.; Anchorage, Alaska, and Seattle, Wash., the CDC said.

Hong Kong flu, which killed 27,900 persons in the United States in 1968-69, also is a variant of Type A influenza. The CDC said vaccines now in use are potent against Hong Kong flu and should offer some protection against the new strain.

The CDC recommended that the vaccine be given to the elderly and chronically ill because they face greater risks if they contract influenza.

In addition to the cases in the five cities, there were outbreaks in three military establishments in Colorado — Lowry Air Force Base at Denver and Ent Air Force Base and the U.S. Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs.

Air Force health officials are investigating the outbreak at Ent AFB to determine the amount of protection afforded by the current influenza vaccine, the CDC said.

The new strains of Type A flu have been under surveillance for some time to determine their extent of spread, and CDC reported last fall it could not say whether widespread outbreaks of the new strains would occur this winter.

The CDC said the new type of flu strain appears closely related to A-England-42-72 virus, which was first isolated in London.

States Given 3 More Months

Washington (AP) — States were given a three-month extension Wednesday before the federal plans to withhold nearly $700 million in matching welfare funds goes into effect.

Undersecretary John G. Veneman of the Health, Education and Welfare Department told state welfare chiefs that the penalties for ineligible and overpaid recipients on relief rolls will begin "no later than April 1."

"We have not withdrawn our regulations," Veneman emphasized. "I think we're basically right and the concept is appropriate."

He addressed the National Council of State Welfare Administrators at the close of two days of closed meetings among local, state and federal welfare officials to discuss the new enforcement policy.

Veneman said HEW will extend the formal comment period on the proposed penalties to Jan. 15 which would have the effect of delaying the first withholding of federal funds scheduled originally for Jan. 1, representing the third-quarter prepayment in fiscal 1973.

An additional effect may be to establish a new base period for ineligibility statistics, perhaps January-June 1972, upon which the penalties will be levied against states, sources said.

In the meantime, Veneman said HEW stands ready to meet with states individually or as a group to discuss proposed changes in federal welfare regulations.

"This is a very constructive delay which allows us time to sit down and work out our difficulties," said Robert R. Carlson, California's welfare director.

As originally announced Dec.

4, HEW said it would withhold $233 million in matching funds the first half of 1973 and $456.2 million the following 12 months.

The penalties would be in proportion to the percentage of ineligible or overpaid recipients found on each state's welfare rolls, as determined by sampling, or the nationwide 8.3% misspending rate in the case of 21 states which had failed to review at least 85% of their required samples.

States have contended that the system discouraged accurate assessment of overpayments, since the more they found the more they would be taxed.

New Parking Ban Imposed

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf imposed a new parking ban prohibiting parking on the south and west sides of the streets in residential areas to allow snow removal crews to clear the streets.

The new parking ban went into effect at 10 p.m. Wednesday and will remain in effect until all streets are cleared, the mayor said.

In addition, the mayor lifted the ban issued Tuesday prohibiting parking on the north and east sides of the streets in residential areas.

Approximately 600 parking violation tickets were issued Tuesday night as a result of that parking restriction, according to Asst. Chief of Police Willis Manchester.

However, a misunderstanding between the Lincoln Police Department and city officials led to an early ticketing of motorists before 10 p.m. Tuesday—the time the first parking ban went into effect.

Manchester said there were

Paris — With the central problem of the Vietnam peace talks still unresolved, Henry A. Kissinger flew home from Paris Wednesday night leaving the negotiations deadlocked on the crucial question of postwar political control of South Vietnam. Kissinger Flies Home;
Core Problem Unsolved

(c) The New York Times

Paris — Henry A. Kissinger flew home Wednesday night ending an arduous round of Vietnam cease-fire talks without having solved the central problem — political control of South Vietnam.

In a brief departure statement before leaving by special plane at 9 p.m., Kissinger said: "I am returning to Washington and will exchange messages with special adviser Le Duc Tho as to whether a further meeting is necessary."

In the meantime, Ambassador Sullivan and two members of my staff are staying here and will be meeting under the direction of Ambassador Porter with experts of the other side."

Kissinger thanked the French government for "the privileges and cooperation they have extended to me."

To Continue Bargaining
The technical experts staying on, including William H. Sullivan, deputy assistant secretary of state for East Asian affairs, and William J. Porter, the American representative at the formal Vietnam peace conference here, will continue bargaining sessions over details of a draft cease-fire text and related protocols about such things as an international control commission for Vietnam.

Authoritative sources said there had been some progress on details, clarifying language and assuring a simultaneous cease-fire in Laos, though not in Cambodia. But the central issue — political power in South Vietnam — remains unsettled. All efforts to bridge the disagreement with ambiguous language have reportedly failed.

On the central issue of the war the negotiations thus were deadlocked. The agreement between Kissinger and Tho to maintain their communications and the possibility of further meetings indicated that the talks had not broken down. But they had not made any progress on any but peripheral issues either.

Kissinger or his deputy, Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., was expected to go next to Saigon for another round of meetings with President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Sovereignty Stickler
Thieu continues to insist that his government is the "sole legitimate" representative of all of South Vietnam. He has been pressing for recognition of South Vietnam's "sovereignty and independence" in any cease-fire agreement the central point on which negotiations were finally stalled.

Further Thieu opposes inclusion of a third segment of uncommitted delegates on National Council of Reconciliation and Concord with equal standing alongside Viet Cong and Saigon delegates, as provided in the draft cease-fire agreement drawn up by Kissinger and Tho in October. Thieu is believed to fear that the non-Communist, non-Saigon segment might be won over by the Viet Cong and give that side dominance.

The end of full-scale secret talks in Paris, for the time being at least, returned the problem of decision to the White House and to Saigon.

Kissinger and Tho and their aides spent six hours negotiating Wednesday, the 15th and longest session in the current series of secret talks that began Nov. 20.

Afterward it was understood Kissinger briefed South Vietnam's delegate to the formal peace talks here, Pham Dang Lam, as he has done after each day's meeting. The White House said Kissinger would report to President Nixon Thursday.

Kissinger's departure, originally scheduled for early afternoon, was repeatedly delayed. It was reported reliably however, that the added negotiation brought no closer the agreement needed to end the war.

No Point
Authoritative sources said Kissinger had decided there was no point in taking up the cease-fire proposal that Thieu announced in Saigon Tuesday, which the South Vietnamese are to put formally before the regular four-sided Vietnam conference here Thursday.

The American negotiator was reported to feel that it would only use up more weeks of futile talking, since the essence of Thieu's plan has been rejected repeatedly by Hanoi.

Kissinger was also reported to consider unreasonable Thieu's view that a three-segment National Council of Reconciliation sought by Hanoi would be a coalition government in disguise.

Not A Government
In Kissinger's view it was reported the council could not act as a government because all its decisions must have unanimous consent and its role does not go beyond supervision of election.

South Vietnamese sources have contended however, that the real grounds for Thieu's complaint are that the council would give the Viet Cong and the Saigon government equal administrative status.

The conviction was growing among those who have watched negotiations closely that the only chance Washington has of getting Thieu to approve an agreement acceptable to Hanoi will come if Nixon decides to sign on a fixed date regardless of Saigon.

Staley Declines Debate

Kansas City (AP) — National Farmers Organization President Oren Lee Staley declined a challenge to debate Wednesday as the NFO opened its annual convention at Municipal Auditorium.

The challenge had come from Don Kimball, Amarillo, Tex., who had declared himself a candidate to unseat Staley, the only president the farm group has ever had.

In a letter to Kimball, Staley said Kimball's stipulation that only the two of them be provided with microphones for the debate would have the effect of closing the nominations to others desiring to seek the presidency.

"When the proper time comes for elections I will urge the delegates to give all eligible candidates for president all the time they need and deserve," Staley said in his letter.

That left open the possibility that Kimball, 38, one of six NFO board members expelled from their posts last summer, might be ruled ineligible to seek the presidency.

Efforts by Kimball and others calling themselves the '72 Convention Committee to unseat Staley after 17 years in the organization's top office are the heart of a fierce internal struggle which is claiming the spotlight at the convention.

The committee seeks not only a change of faces in the NFO's Corning, Iowa, headquarters but also adoption of several new bylaws. The proposed bylaws would, among other things, limit the time in which one man could hold the presidency and bar salaried NFO employees from holding elective office in the organization.

Discussion of the bylaw proposals was expected to take place Thursday. The presidential election is slated for Friday.

As the convention opened Staley, the chairman, said the NFO board was urging the convention to permit the six departed directors the chance to state their case. The directors have contended they were "purged" by Staley.

because they disagreed with him on matters of NFO business.

Just before the opening gavel the '72 Convention Committee attracted somewhat more than 250 people, by a reporter's count, to a rally in a nearby hotel meeting room.

Speakers at the meeting reiterated dissident group's contention that Staley has outlived his effectiveness at the NFO helm and is losing support of the organization's members.

Asked what would happen if the '72 Convention Committee's efforts proved unsuccessful, Ken Sauter of Kensel, N.D., committee chairman, said he estimated 200 people who had worked toward the committee's aims would be "purged" by Staley and his supporters.

Hampton, Va. (AP) — About 100 dead seagulls were found on the Langley Air Force Base golf course.

U.S. Bombers Harass
Fresh Troops, Tanks

Saigon (AP) — U.S. bombers harassed several thousand fresh North Vietnamese troops and nearly 100 tanks Wednesday as they moved toward the Ho Chi Minh Trail network, U.S. sources said.

The units were believed headed either to the Laotian heartland or south to South Vietnam via the Mu Gia Pass area on the western rim of North Vietnam's southern panhandle.

At sea, a machinery room fire broke out on the sabotage-planned U.S. carrier Ranger off the Vietnamese coast, but it was quickly extinguished.

The Navy said it found no indication of arson.

Intelligence reports were uncertain whether the fresh North Vietnamese troops and tanks were destined for the Plain of Jars in Laos or South Vietnamese battlefields.

Military sources said several tanks were knocked out before they even got to the Ho Chi Minh Trail, 700 miles of interconnecting trails through Laos and Cambodia to Vietnam.

North Vietnam also has been sending new tanks and troops through the demilitarized zone to reinforce depleted divisions in South Vietnam's northernmost Quang Tri Province, one source said.

Many Causes Of Rise In Price Of Food Cited

•The New York Times

Washington — "A simple food like an orange is handled 17 times from tree to table." "Apples are packed in 40 different shapes and sizes of container, none of which fit the standard grocery shipping pallets."

These were two of many causes of rising food prices cited Wednesday in a report released by Commerce Secretary Peter G. Peterson, chairman of the National Commission of Productivity.

Peterson, expressing confidence that "there are many opportunities to improve productivity in the food industry," recommended creation of "an ongoing government group whose sole concern is food industry productivity."

Part Of Effort

Release of the report by the commission's staff and Peterson's publication of his memorandum on food productivity to Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz, the President's chief economic adviser, were part of the administration's effort to try to moderate the rise in food prices without imposing price controls at the farm.

Peterson stressed that few "opportunities for productivity growth" can be realized alone by one tier of the industry — retailers, for example, or processors. "A heretofore unattainable level of industry co-operation" is required, he said.

The report, written with the assistance of nine panels of industry representatives, divided barriers to greater productivity into several categories — government regulation, peculiarities of consumer taste, business anxieties about the antitrust laws, transportation oddities, and traditional industry practices.

Indirect Reference

Nothing was said about labor unions as such. However, in an indirect reference, Peterson said achieving significant cost reductions "will require the constructive acquiescence, if not the full support, of many who will lose more in the short run than they will gain."

Among the "opportunities" listed by the report were the following:

—The Commodity Credit Corp. will purchase natural cheese only in 40-pound blocks. That size "was sensible when most of the handling of stored cheese was done by manual labor, but now is too small to be handled economically by advanced handling methods." Sources close to the commission said the CCC, which makes commodity loans to farmers, has expressed "some resistance" to changing the standard.

—"One Midwestern state" — identified by the Agriculture Department as Michigan — "requires that hog dogs contain a minimum of 12% protein." The federal standard is just over 11%. The result is to bolster the demand for dry milk powder, which helps Michigan's dairy farmers, and to deny to Michigan consumers "the benefit of hot dog price competition provided by out-of-state packers." Three big meat packers have challenged the Michigan law in the federal courts.

—The report cited an example of how tomato growers' increased productivity has added to the consumer's bill. California processors buy tomatoes by weight. The growers increased the average weight of their tomatoes in 1960-70 by 10%, "all in water content" which the processors had to remove to make ketchup, sauce and other products. "The consumer ultimately pays the water bill," the report observed.

—Bills can be fed to market weight quicker and cheaper than steers, but consumers believe bullock meat is "tougher and stronger in flavor. This belief is a holdover from the days when bulls were hitched to plows for 20 years and then slaughtered." If that resistance could be overcome, "the introduction of bull meat as a major factor in meat supplies would reduce marketing costs and raise beef production productivity by at least 12% a year. Officials said test marketing should be a first step.

—Similarly, Development of "widespread consumer acceptance" of quahog clams could bring to market 100 million pounds a year, more than double the present supply of littlenecks and cherrystones.

Another "opportunity" involves federal milk price support payments that is based on butterfat content. Dairy farmers and breeders have been striving to raise that content. "American tastes, however, have shifted away from fat and towards protein." Consequently, the Agriculture Department buys "substantial quantities of excess butterfat" and in effect discourages production of what consumers want.

U.S. Wins Final Victory

United Nations, N.Y. (AP) — The United States won the final victory Wednesday in its campaign for a reduced U.N. budget assessment. The General Assembly voted 81-27 to lower the American share from 31½ to 25% of the budget.

The Soviet Union fought the reduction to the last, charging that it was the result of "unprecedented arm-twisting" and "methods smacking of the cold war."

"A so-called super twist operation was carried out on a world scale," Soviet Ambassador Jacob Malik charged.

He said the United States spends more than $75 billion a year on armaments, yet wants to "take from this impecunious organization a measly $13 million."

The $13 million is what the U.S. reduction would have amounted to on this year's assessed budget of $203 million. The United States paid $64 million.

The Soviet share of the budget is 14.18%.

Malik called on the United States to make a voluntary contribution of at least $50 million to cover part of the U.N. deficit. He also said the U.S. share of the regular budget should be raised to 38% on the basis of capacity to pay.

He warned the assembly before the vote that if it granted the reduction the Soviet Union reserved the right "to take corresponding measures."

Park Chung Hee Lifts Martial Law In South Korea

•The New York Times

Seoul, South Korea — President Park Chung Hee Wednesday night lifted a nationwide martial law that he had imposed 57 days ago in order to amend the constitution and clear the way for him to stay in power for an unlimited time.

The removal of martial law, effective midnight Wednesday comes two days before the scheduled popular election Friday of 2,359 delegates to the National Conference for Unification, which would choose a new president for the next six years.

Park, a 55-year-old former army general who took power in a 1961 coup d'etat, is certain to be re-elected to the presidency.

FDA Proposes Limits On Vitamins A And D

Washington (AP) —The Food and Drug Administration Wednesday proposed to limit the level of Vitamins A and D in non-prescription products and said also it is considering tight controls for prescription diet pills.

The FDA said there is a danger of acute and chronic toxicity in high doses of Vitamins A and D and added that their availability contributes to their misuse.

The National Academy of Sciences had no direct comment but a spokesman noted that it had said in 1967 that the public should be made aware of risks of self-medication with high levels of vitamins, particularly A and D.

The Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association, a trade organization for firms that include the $322-million-a-year vitamin-and-mineral-pill industry, declined immediate comment.

On the diet pills, Dr. Henry E. Simmons, director of the FDA's Bureau of Drugs, said computer studies have demonstrated that amphetamines and their chemical cousins have extremely limited value in weight loss.

Simmons told a Senate subcommittee that the FDA will revise package inserts for all diet pills "to more thoroughly describe the limitations of their use."

The FDA gave interested persons 60 days to comment on the Vitamin A and D limitation proposal, which FDA said would be followed by broad regulations covering most other vitamins, minerals, and other food supplements.

The immediate effect of the proposal would be to require reformulation of an undetermined number of non-prescription multivitamins.

Vitamins given by prescription would not be affected.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By JACK ANDERSON

(Note: Today's column is by Washington newsman Jack Anderson. Mr. Dobler's column will be resumed shortly.)

WASHINGTON — A Greek national made a secret $15,000 gift to President Nixon's campaign and got a $4.7 million contract a few months later to refuel the U.S. Sixth Fleet in Greece.

The golden Greek is Nicholas Vardinoyannis of Motor Oil Hellas in Athens, who once tried to break an international oil blockade around racist Rhodesia and now strongly backs the Greek military junta.

The swarthy 41-year-old Greek millionaire made his generous contribution to the Nixon campaign early this year, but it didn't get reported until November 2.

The timing of the contribution could not have been better for a man bent on making money from the Republican administration. It came just as the Navy was deciding to give the Sixth Fleet a home port in Greece. Immediately, Vardinoyannis and other Greek oil men began jockeying for the rich refueling contract.

The gift raises a possible criminal question. If the Justice Department can prove that Vardinoyannis was conducting even informal "negotiations" at the time of the gift, then he was in violation of federal laws governing foreign contractors. Formal Pentagon solicitation of bids did not begin until May, some weeks after the gift.

This is not the only shabby question in the Navy's deal with the Greeks on the use of Athens as a home port. There is a mystery over a 5 million "relocatable pier" being built for the fleet's destroyers there.

It began when the Navy chief, Adm. Elmo Zumwalt, vowed to Congress that "We do not have any intention to build military facilities for our ships" that home-port in Greece.

Yet, within weeks the Navy began to circumvent these assurances with plans to finance the $5 million pier through an ingenious "lease" agreement with Greek entrepreneurs.

A crusading Greek exile, Elias Demetrapoulos, tipped off Congress to Zumwalt's seeming inconsistency. Now, Reps. Ben Rosenthal, D-N.Y., and Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., chairmen of the House European and Near East subcommittees, have asked the General Accounting Office to investigate.

Still more trouble is in the offing. Assistant Defense Secretary Warren Nutter has assured Congress that the main reason for home-porting is to keep Navy "families together rather than apart" by bringing wives to Athens. But the Navy's guide for sailors gives a racier vista on home-porting.

In a "Q and A" section, the guide asks: "Does Athens have any 'action'?" Then it answers itself. "Yes . . . Ask another single man who has been here for awhile. In addition to the domestic variety, the tourist traffic is considerable . . . Also, American service-women and government secretaries are not exactly wallflowers."

Footnote: The Defense Department assured us that there was nothing political in the award of the $4.7 million refueling contract to Vardinoyannis. He got it because he offered the best deal among 38 proposals, the Pentagon insisted. The Navy said the deal had been "concurred" in by both the House and Senate.

Two conservation-minded congressmen, Henry Reuss, D-Wis., and John Dingell, D-Mich., have caught the federal government trying to pass off strip-miners as environmentalists. They discovered the National Coal Association, which has contributed so much to ecological spoilage, listed in a new federal directory of environmental organizations.

Reuss and Dingell wrote to environmental czar William Ruckelshaus that "if the National Coal Association qualifies," then so do the oil, gas and other nature-destroying lobbies. They asked Ruckelshaus to halt distribution of the directory until the coal lobby was stricken from it. Ruckelshaus sheepishly complied, acknowledging that his agency had goofed.

Bedeck Yourselves, And Then The Halls

NEW YORK — This is the season of the year when women can count on the beauty experts to advise them how to stay beautiful and trim in the face of what they invariably see as potential holiday disaster.

As always, Mala Rubinstein, who took over for Madame Helena on her death a few years ago, is up to her ears in earnings about how to keep from getting over your head at holiday time. "Don't panic!" is the first urging. "Get a head start on St. Nick — and beat the Christmas 'blahs' before they begin."

Yes, oh yes. But new how? "About Christmas shopping, and those crowds that leave you bushed: How can you buck the relentless holiday hordes, short of beating them off with a broom? The best way: build yourself an invisible 'shield' of perfume! Pick a delicious, potent perfume. Lavish yourself with it. Now, shop in the serene security of your own little scented world!"

But of course. Why didn't we think of that?

"With two weeks to go, and the holiday rush full upon you, some easy, as-you-go, beauty 'lifts' can do wonders toward keeping up your morale, and keep you looking as though you really thrive on all the wear and tear!"

Here comes the pitch.

"For instance, if all goes as usual, you'll find that last year's tree trimmings have become this year's prize dust-trap. Getting them down from the top shelf somewhere, unwrapping and sorting them, it's a grimy, drying business for the hands. Take a new approach! First, smooth on lots of hand cream or lotion, pull on a pair of thin cotton gloves, and now go at it, with your hands being pampered all the while."

Done, Miss Rubinstein. But what about that awful, dried-out, frenzied face?

"You've had it! What you don't need at this stage of the game is a worried 'shopper's look'! So — wear the brightest, shiniest, Christmas cheeriest lipstick you can find. Like a bright red badge of courage for your morale. And every mirrored glimpse of yourself is a reminder to smile!"

Ho, ho, ho, as Santa says.

"It's about time to get those packages wrapped. To put yourself in a super holiday mood — and give your creative spirit a lift, too — tackle the job with the prettiest fingers going. Paint your nails with a sparkly, holly-bright shade of polish; wear a dazzling ring or two. Then see how each package you wrap suddenly becomes a 'production' and much more fun to watch happening than a mere matter of paper, tape and ribbon."

"Keep a basket of 'extra' gifts — beautifully wrapped — at your entrance way, for unexpected callers. It's such a little way for you to help everyone have a bigger, merrier Christmas!" And don't forget to shave your legs, give yourself a cleansing beauty mask, and plan, in advance, an exciting new "surprise" makeup that's pure smash — eyes made big, bold and bright with sparkling eyeshadow colors, twinkly tinsel highlights, cheeks rosy up with blusher . . . There, you've DONE IT! You've come through another year's holiday rush. You're looking great!"

Thanks, Mala.

I Didn't Know It Applied Just To Him'

Transit System Shows Gain

Before last May, a good many folks in Lincoln would rather have gone to the dentist than ridden a bus. With no slur intended to the dental profession, buses have become more popular, just as proponents of the city takeover of the transit system said they would.

Lincoln's brand new buses arrived in the spring and during the next few months the Lincoln Transit System (LTS) board mapped out new and expanded routes reaching additional sections of the city. The new routes went into effect Nov. 20. The new buses and schedules have had the desired effect on ridership figures, according to LTS manager Gerald Rae.

He reported this week that revenues have increased and ridership has jumped 23% compared to the same period one year ago. During the two-week period from Nov. 21 to Dec. 5, 100,401 people rode Lincoln buses. During a similar two-week period one year ago, from Nov. 24 to Dec. 7, 81,300 passengers were recorded. Thus a net gain of a little less than 20,000. Revenues are up, with 23,964 taken in during the first two weeks of the new routes, compared to 18,337 taken in during the corresponding period in 1971. Of course, as Rae noted, expenses have risen.

The important thing, however, is not that the transit system be profit-making or even operate on a break-even basis — although it would be so much the better if it could — but that more people ride the buses. This is being accomplished and it's a certainty that the LTS board will continue looking at the city map with an eye toward even better routing and service.

Lincoln's experience with the takeover of the bus system gives strength to the argument in favor of a taken fare or no-fare public transit system. A transportation system that offers good service at little or no cost to the passenger might attract enough people to cut down on traffic congestion and in the long run save some expenditures on street maintenance and new construction. Lincoln may not be ready for it now, but it is something to think about.

Tony Takes The Lead

W. A. "Tony" Boyle was re-elected president of the United Mine Workers in 1969 and shortly thereafter his opponent, Joseph A. Jablonski, who charged Boyle with mishandling union funds, was shot to death along with his wife and daughter. Several union officials have confessed or been indicted in connection with the murders.

After conducting a trial without jury several months ago, a federal judge found that there had been widespread voting fraud in the election three years ago and he ordered a special election which has just been completed.

During the campaign for the union presidency Boyle's opponent, Miners for Democracy candidate Arnold Miller, brought up the corruption and fraud issues and further charged that Boyle was a stooge for the mineowners. Boyle countered with the suggestion that Miller was run by "outsiders" — presumably including the government.

It now appears that the Miners for Democracy are receiving a lesson in democracy. In an election which should be completely free of even a hint of fraud or scandal, since the ballots were impounded by the government and are being hand-counted by Labor Department officials, scattered first returns find Boyle leading Miller. The union boss is taking nearly 60% of the vote thus far.

Although both camps agree that the initial returns are inconclusive, a trend seems to be taking shape. If Boyle should prevail it would seem that above all, murder aside, prior voting fraud aside and mishandling of the miners' money aside, what the miners resent most is real or alleged intervention in the affairs by "outsiders." They prefer to keep it all in the family.

The New Look In Ireland

PARIS — Jack Lynch, the spry, athletic Taoiseach or prime minister of the Irish Republic, has confounded those critics who called him too weak and easy-going by now giving Dublin the most vibrant display of political leadership it has seen in years.

In swift succession his government has cracked down on both branches of the IRA, the Marxist officials and the Provisionals who are shedding most of the blood in Ulster; arrested Sean MacStiofain, Provisionals' chief of staff; fired the governing board of the state radio and television; arrested 66 people who demonstrated against Lynch's actions; rammed through a law enabling him to lock up anyone suspected of conspiratorial activities; and passed a referendum terminating the "special position" of the Catholic church.

This is the most electrifying show of dynamism anyone has seen in the republic since it was created half a century ago. Nobody expected it of the mild, soft-spoken family man from Cork whose tenure of office had appeared to be marked by indecision while urban guerrilla warfare raged through neighboring, British-run Ulster.

Lynch has always talked good sense but in the past he didn't give the impression of sufficient toughness to follow his own advice. The last time I talked with him (July 10, 1972) he said he opposed efforts to settle the Irish partition question by force, adding: "Even if we were strong enough to do this, we wouldn't want 1,000,000 Ulster Protestants thrown in with us if they hadn't given their consent."

He also said he favored a secular constitution, birth control, non-sectarian schools and divorce for those who wished it (mainly the small Protestant minority) and through the IRA, was illegal, thought it hard to obtain evidence to convict its members. Now, with surprising speed and audacity, he has moved on all fronts to demonstrate the power of his convictions.

Ireland's legal structure has long been regarded as anomalous in a modern world and this became even more striking when the republic was admitted to the European Community. The Catholic church had a favored constitutional status (now eliminated).

Divorce and birth control are still legally banned. Childless marriages of mixed religions are prevented from adopting children. Doctors can only prescribe the pill for non-contraceptive purposes and its manufacture and import are outlawed.

These outdated concepts encouraged passionate opposition by Ulster's Protestant majority to any thought of union with the South. But the reform and modernization process Lynch has begun will, in the long-run, take a lot of steam out of this northern opinion. At the same time Lynch's actions indicate not only that the mass of southerners opposes violent action to end partition but perhaps is not vitally concerned about unification at all.

This change in mood, so shrewdly perceived by Lynch, has undoubtedly facilitated his dramatic reform movement. The IRA is faced by tough action under the new amendment to the offense against the state act, a law which would be regarded as de facto in any less deeply democratic nation.

And the MacStiofain hunger strike, which might have touched off a revolution a generation ago, has continued with remarkably few manifestations of support.

The I.R.A. officials are far more extremist than MacStiofain's Provisionals because they want to see all Ireland turned into a Marxist state. But the officials have refrained from messing about in Ulster

Patchwork Prairie Country

The juniper tree that stands by the house will add an extra measure of happiness though the top of it was broken by the heavy snow. It is to become our Christmas tree.

I was broken of spirit when I learned the tree was destroyed for we have fostered two of them for years on either side of our house. From the living room window I can look deep into the trees and have constantly been entertained by the bird and animal life that lived in it. There was the robin family last summer, the blue-jays in winter, an occasional squirrel and a host of sparrows that fly in every winter night and chirp until the night falls.

Now bringing the tree indoors for one last measure of joy will somewhat ease the sight of the shaggy trunk left standing. It is the blue juniper with the tips of the branches touched with a frosty blue-green color.

The juniper is not the usual type of tree used for the holidays but it is one that I remember as having years ago at home when my father would bring in our tree after having chopped it himself.

I like the pungent odor and feathery branches. In childhood the scent of burning candles on Christmas Eve made it more special.

Grandmother had special candle-holders that clipped to the tree with a heavy gold ball that hung at the end of a strong wire. This weight helped to balance the candle and prevent fire from catching the branches.

I remember Grandfather lighting the candles in a breathtaking moment, then standing by the tree with his eye watching every candle with its small flicker of light for he was nervous about the hazards of fire.

Little Lad is coming to help me decorate our tree. He is the reason for our having a tree and it is only fitting that he should also have a hand in adding the decorations. I also have the Christmas cookies baked and decorated. Most of them I put into the deep-freeze but those left will add to our gala event.

Isn't it ironic, I thought this morning, that the income tax forms should come just when the Christmas spirit is about to overtake one completely? Along with the Christmas cards and daily paper, I spied the booklet called the 1040 package. By any other name, it would still be the same.

In red letters across the top I read, "A Special Message From The Commissioner." A Christmas message? Maybe in the fine print I would find a special greeting just for me. I read the whole message. Nope, that wasn't the kind of a message the commissioner was talking about.

Farmers have been struggling to get the corn and milo harvested under very adverse conditions. It is hard on machines to have to operate under such cold weather conditions.

Before The Farmer could grease the combine today, he had to thaw out the grease gun first. Then the throttle was frozen, causing much agitation in trying to get it thawed out, and on and on the problems multiplied. Finally several sections broke in the sickle bar after cutting the frozen stalks all afternoon. It was then he quit though not without some misgivings. Better to leave half of our crop in the field than to ruin a combine along with the milo already badly damaged.

Farmers have difficulty in working with their gloves on and fingers soon freeze when they must take off their gloves to fix small parts of machinery. Some farmers have had to crawl under their machines to work on them. Lying on the cold frozen ground has its hazards, too.

If Santa comes this year to the rural area, it will not be in a plane, a sled or a helicopter. It will be riding atop a combine or corn-picker.

JAMES RESTON

Henry Kissinger In Paris

PARIS — Henry Kissinger has been living during the critical last days of the Vietnam peace talks in the old Rothschild House, now the American embassy residence at No. 11 Rue du Faubourg St. Honoré, down this glittering street from where President Pompidou of France resides in the Elysee Palace.

On the Faubourg St. Honoré, all the shops look like Tiffany's on Christmas Eve. Judging by the prices, this must be where inflation was invented, so the few reporters who wait outside for Henry can at least go window-shopping.

That's about their only consolation and considering their salaries, it isn't much. In the Paris peace talks of 1919, Harold Nicolson, the British diplomat, said there were three ways to deal with the press. The best way, he said, was to tell them nothing, which at least gave them the excitement of a chase. The next best way was to tell them everything, which kept them busy and eventually bored them. And the worst way, he said, was to pretend you were giving them the facts, when you weren't.

Kissinger has followed the first course. He has told the press nothing. He has left them to judge by his expressions when he came out of the meetings with Le Duc Tho how things were going. When he seemed pleased, they assumed the negotiations were going well, and when he seemed grim, they assumed things were going badly, and when he read their interpretations in the press, he switched, and looked amiable when he was depressed, and sad when he had made a little progress.

So he has come to the end of his negotiations here without seeing the reporters or indicating how his negotiations have come out, but the Vietnamese have talked cautiously to their friends in Paris about the central issue that still remains, and it is an extremely awkward issue.

Accordingly to these secondary sources, it is a question of whether the cease-fire agreement between the United States on the one hand, and North Vietnam and the National Liberation Front on the other, will acknowledge in a few simple unambiguous words that the Saigon government has sovereign right and authority over all the territory of South Vietnam.

Saigon, according to these sources, keeps asking that all North Vietnamese troops be removed from South Vietnam, but insists, even if it cannot negotiate their withdrawal, that the cease-fire agreement make clear that they have no legal right to be there. This is opposed by the National Liberation Front, which hopes to replace the Thieu government in Saigon, and Hanoi has supported the N.L.F. and though Kissinger has proposed innumerable ways of avoiding or postponing this dilemma, apparently it has not been resolved.

Meanwhile, Kissinger has found time, during the interminable arguments over this central point in the last few days, to talk to the French about the even more serious questions that are developing between the U.S. and the expanded Common Market countries of Europe, and between the U.S. and Japan over the critical monetary and trade questions in the world.

The Europeans are paying little attention to the intricate questions of the Vietnam cease-fire. They assume that these will be settled fairly soon, either with the agreement of Saigon, or in a separate agreement among Washington, Hanoi and the Liberation Front. In fact, the newspapers in Britain and in Europe have given up on trying to analyze Kissinger's facial expressions, and pay little attention to the last phase of the Vietnam talks.

Kissinger is clearly turning his mind to the problems of the future. President Nixon is already preparing his State of the Union message, his inaugural address, and his annual report on the state of the world. One has the impression that, whatever difficulties remain in the Vietnam negotiations, the U.S. is determined to have a cease-fire by inauguration day, on Jan. 20 at the latest, and preferably to get some prisoners of war home by Christmas, if possible, even if this means signing a cease-fire agreement without Saigon.

Kissinger talked the other day to Pompidou privately about the monetary, trade, and political questions between the U.S. and the European Common Market, and the related question of money and commerce between these two and Japan. He also had a talk in Paris with Jean Monnet, the architect and philosopher of European unity, and Monnet will be going to Washington late in January to carry on these conversations.

So even before these difficult negotiations about Southeast Asia and the past are over, the administration is beginning to turn to the neglected and larger problems of the world. Kissinger initiated an inquiry into Washington's relations with Europe and Japan last June, during the presidential election, but has been so preoccupied with the Vietnam question ever since that he has not had time to bring the European and Japanese questions to the forefront of National Security Council staff debate.

Now things are changing. The question of sovereignty over all of South Vietnam remains — and either Kissinger or General Haig or somebody else will have to go to Saigon again to try to persuade General Thieu to sign the cease-fire and avoid a separate peace — but the impression one gets here is that Nixon is determined to have the Vietnam cease-fire behind him before he takes the oath of office for his second term on Jan. 20.

Nudist Neighbors Criticized

By ROBERT PETERSON

Question: — "We moved to Florida in retirement and love our new home. But we're distressed by the people next door. We haven't met them and don't think we'd care to. They have a backyard and pool surrounded by a slatted fence which reveals just enough to disclose that they are nudists. Even if the slats in the fence were filled in we'd be uneasy knowing they're walking around that way. Probably we're old-fashioned but we're Methodists from Indiana and don't like the thought of living near people like that. Is this sort of thing legal? What should we do?"

Answer: — If your neighbors are clearly visible strolling around in the buff, it's understandable that this may prove embarrassing to you and guests visiting. However, you have legal recourse. But if their nudity is not apparent unless you use a telescope or squint your eyes through the slats you should forget about it. Society may not be ready for public nudity, but people should be permitted to dress or undress as they please in the privacy of their homes, and enclosed backyards. To assuage your Methodist morality, read Genesis 11, 18 and 20, where it says, "And they were both naked, the man and his wife, and were not ashamed."

Question: — "On my 65th birthday the minister joined our family at dinner and gave a little speech wishing me '65 more happy birthdays.' Don't you agree this is just one of those fatuous empty things people say when they don't know what felicitations to confer on a relic who's been put to pasture?"

Answer: — Yes, but folks who say such things generally mean well. And who knows — scientists may stumble onto some miraculous youth elixir in the next decade which will make our present lifespan look like just the beginning. Actually, an age of 130 is possible. At any rate, the oldest person in America claims to be 130 years old, and the Social Security folks have accepted this claim.

Question: — "I'm 55 and have supported my wife for the quarter-century we've been hitched. She didn't chip in a cent because she didn't have a cent to chip. Last spring she inherited $6,000 from an uncle, without asking me, brought government bonds in her name. They won't mature for several years. Is this cricket?"

Answer: — Why not. She put the money in a good safe place, and probably has it earmarked for your joint security and satisfaction in retirement. We men enjoy thinking we support our wives — when actually they often contribute more to the family welfare than we do in money. The inheritance is hers, and you shouldn't begrudge her the ego-satisfaction of keeping it in her name.

Question: — "The older I grow the more I seem to want to stay in bed. I'm 72, had a bad leg fracture last year, and have almost decided to become an invalid."

Answer: — Don't do it. Excessive bed rest can touch off a score of hazards. Muscles and joints deteriorate, appetite diminishes, coordination declines, circulation slows down, and there's a demoralizing effect on the mind. Medical science today is united in the belief that older people should make every effort to stay on their feet as an antidote to invalidism.

Cute, Furry, Friendly And Clean Creatures Must Come To A Sad End

By SAM THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau
 Seward — The little critters are cute, furry, friendly, clean and easy to keep. Only trouble is, you've got to keep 'em in to make keeping 'em worth while.

Mrs. Chapin Hand leaves that job to her husband, preferring to think of their 700 chinchillas more as pets than as a cash crop. "They're real friendly," she says. "You can make a real good pet out of 'em if you want to. Chape does the peltin', but some women do it too."

Even Chape doesn't need to do much peltin' any more. Chinchilla breeders since 1949, the Hands have bred up the quality of their herd to the point where out of 500 animals born each year, they pelt only about 100. The rest after herd replacement are sold to other ranchers as breeding stock.

A dining room wall virtually covered with trophies attests to the Hands' success in breeding shows all over the country, and their breeding stock is known nationwide. That success derives from 23 years of experience, which can be matched by only 30 or 40 other breeders in the country. We're all one big family," Hand says.

"You just can't believe how they've improved in the 20 years we've been working on them," says Mrs. Hand, displaying an early pelt — brown and uneven in texture — next to a recent one. The recent pelt is smooth, thick and steel gray (or blue, as she calls it), tipped with black.

New Colors Developed

Other colors, called mutations, have been developed in the last few years, Hand observes. These — the beige, white charcoal and black velvet varieties — are the only pelt to have escaped a recent cut in demand which has cut the price of a high-quality standard pelt from the $50-$60 range to $25-$35.

"People aren't wearing stylish clothes," Hand explains. "They're wearing burlap and jeans and that kind of thing. Under market conditions today, you couldn't make a living on pelts, although you could on breeding stock."

"But the trend is going back to wearing furs," he notes hopefully.

The Hands, who also operate a small neighborhood grocery store, fortunately have never had to depend entirely on the chinchilla market for their livelihood.

"At first, we did it for recreation to get away from the store," Hand says of the animals. "Now it's the other way around — we divide our time about 50-50."

Meanwhile, the operation has grown from half the Hand double garage into an addition and has overflowed into a new building erected three years ago.

Still, the critters are easy to take care of. Mrs. Hand fills individual feeders and an automatic water bucket once a day and fills the spaces between the cages with straw for nibbling. Every once in a while she inserts a box of rock dust into each cage for the chinchillas to bathe themselves in.

There are very few disease problems, she says, and the chinchillas — unlike mink — eat only vegetable foods, leaving little odor. The Hands buy quantities of pellet feed that supplies all the animals' nutritional requirements.

Breeding is accomplished by housing a male and about nine females in a "run" of joined cages. The gestation period is 111 days, and a single breeding female can be expected to average about four offspring a year, giving birth by herself. The extra males are pelted.

The entire herd is culled in four-or-five-year cycles because "by then we have better animals coming on," Mrs. Hand says.

"It's kind of slow because sometimes the little dummies won't litter at all the first year," she says. Patience, the Hands agree is a prerequisite of chinchilla ranching—whether one starts with registered stock or breeds up one's own herd as they did.

From South America

Originally found in the Andes of South America, chinchillas were prized for their warm, beautiful fur by the Cacha Indians (from whom they got their name) and later by the Incas.

They were hunted to extinction in the 19th and early 20th centuries — but not before an American mining engineer, Mathias Chapman, managed to trap 23 of the remunerative rodents at 10,000 feet. Chapman brought them down to sea level in stages over a period of three years in order to acclimatize them.

Eleven of the creatures survived the trip back to California, and from them all the domestic chinchillas in existence have descended.

Now there are approximately 200 breeders in Nebraska alone, according to Mrs. Hand. Nearly half of them, including the Hands, market their pets through the Nebraska Chinchilla Breeders Co-op, she says.

Agriculture Dept. Officials Satisfied With New Livestock Licensing Act

Officials of the Nebraska Department of Agriculture have expressed general satisfaction with the new Livestock Dealers Licensing Act, which requires that all Nebraska dealers in cattle, hogs and sheep be licensed.

The law also requires dealers to keep for a period of three years an extensive set of records on the source and sale of all livestock they handle.

"We have about 360 livestock dealers in the state now licensed to handle sheep, hogs and cattle," said Dr. Norman Kruse, state veterinarian. "We think there may be 150 others who ought to be licensed and we're looking for them now."

Kruse said the remaining dealers are probably people who handle small numbers of livestock or who operate on a seasonal basis.

The law has had some beneficial side effects, according to Glenn Kreuscher, state director of agriculture.

"We are able to trace any livestock back to the original owner," he said. "It can serve to discourage rustling as well as provide assistance in locating the source of diseased animals."

Omaha Requests $12 Million In Federal Funding

Omaha (UPI)—Mayor Eugene Leahy reported Wednesday that the city has requested more than $12 million in federal revenue-sharing funds.

The requests from heads of city departments do not include any funds for riverfront development which, Leahy said, also should be supported with federal funds.

He said he expects to set priorities on the proposed projects by Jan. 1.

Councilman Warren Swigart had requested that Leahy's office recommend priorities.

The revenue program, established for a five-year period, is expected to provide at least $20 million for Omaha.

The city received the check Monday for the first six months of the program, but the funds do not have to be committed to specific projects until March 1974, finance director Edwin J. Hewitt said.

Chambers Elect Henry Hagge To Be President

Scottsbluff (UPI)—Henry Hagge of Ogallala was elected president of the Western Nebraska United Chambers of Commerce during their regular monthly meeting here Wednesday. Keith Kemper of Alliance was elected vice president and Roger Peterson of North Platte was named secretary.

Hagge, manager of the Ogallala Chamber of Commerce, succeeds K. L. Van Voorhis of Scottsbluff. Kemper is editor and publisher of the Alliance Times-Herald.

In other action the group went on record in opposition of a proposed wildlife refuge near Crescent Lake north of Oshkosh. They adopted a statement which said in part that they felt the location of such a site would "not be in the best interests of the refuge or the people in the area."

ing as well as provide assistance in locating the source of diseased animals."

Kruse said the law has provided his department with an effective means of locating the source of diseased livestock in two cases in which cattle had been assembled from 11 and 16 different farms, respectively, before being sold.

"For the first time this gives the Nebraska livestock industry a tool to locate livestock in case of disease outbreak," he said. "It enables us to trace them back to the source."

Kreuscher and Kruse suggested that farmers ask livestock dealers to produce identification cards and health papers when they are offered livestock for sale.

"Each dealer or his agent will have an identification card with his photo on it," Kruse said. "He also should have detailed health papers with the origin of the livestock clearly stated."

Kruse suggested that anyone having questions about the papers or the dealer should contact the state veterinarian's office in Lincoln or his local veterinarian.

Kearney City Council OKs Lease Accord With NPPD

Kearney (UPI)—The Kearney City Council Tuesday night approved an electrical distribution lease agreement with the Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD).

D. Marvin Hill, NPPD Kearney District manager, told the council the city would realize more than $8.3 million in lease payments, tax payments and municipal discounts over the 15-year agreement period.

The pact, approved on a 4-1 vote, provides for the city to continue ownership of its electrical system, as it has done since Jan. 1, 1972, and lease the system to NPPD, which will assume full operational responsibility.

Reached after several months of negotiations between city and NPPD officials, the lease provides what Kearney Mayor Francis L. Richards called "the best possible agreement for the residents of Kearney, both at the present time and for the future."

The agreement provides that NPPD will pay the city 10% of the adjusted retail revenue beginning Jan. 1, 1973.

In addition, Kearney will benefit from in-lieu-of-tax payments by NPPD and will receive a one-third discount on the electricity consumed for street lighting and other municipal, school and county operations within the city limits.

Funds due Kearney from the operation of the electric system for 1972 will be applied to the purchase price the city will pay for electric properties in the fringe area of the city limits including the industrial load to the east part of the city and the city-operated airport.

Councilman Carrol Sheldon cast the lone nay vote during Tuesday night's council meeting.

POSTCARD by

Stan Klapal

The chill of winter is up and waiting for us these mornings. I stepped outside for the heel-and-toe recommended by tickler doctors. Had to defrost myself when I came in.

A year from now some health magazine will no doubt print: "Contrary to previous belief, walking can be harmful etc."

For years we stuffed in Entero-vioform — the traveler's aid. This year the AMA says Entero-vioform doesn't do a thing for you. May even be bad for you.

Another medic reports deep breathing can cause you all sorts of trouble. So it goes. Sic transit gloria. (Whatever happened to Gloria? Nice kid, no talent.)

Now how about the preacher at the First Unitarian Church in a little town in Wisconsin.

The police would not let a Living Theater Group perform "Paradise Now" because in the show some people took their clothes off.

So the parson — lib type — said: "That is not civil liberties. Or even civil." He told the actors they could put the show on in the church.

Lo and behold, when the actors began flinging off their clothes, five men and two women in the congregation got so worked up they took off their clothes.

The Reverend did not lose his cool. He said: "I wasn't really prepared for this."

How to keep up with medical science and still stay healthy. "For a time I was really worried about you," said the doctor.

(He was worried? did enough worrying for all of us.)

I had walking pneumonia. (Got over it though. "Those born to be hung needn't worry about flat feet," said grandma.)

A spoiler of life is when the medic says: "Drop in — about two or three days from now — and we'll take a look at your X-rays."

So outside living is healthy? Here's Homer Jones — called "Quagmire". A cook's helper is a logging camp in the Upper Wynoochee Valley in the State of Washington.

A brown bear came around evenings and upset the garbage cans. Quagmire had to clean up the mess.

So he strung an electric wire to the garbage can. Plugged the end into a light socket. When the bear (they called him "Carlson") stuck his nose in the garbage can — Holy Thomas Edison!

The noise woke up the cook. He came out and fired Quagmire for cruelty to animals. Namely Carlson of whom he was very fond.

The cook said: "I liked that bear. I named him for a slob of a mechanic named Carlson down at company headquarters."

So Quagmire packed and left. On his way out, he stopped at headquarters and told Carlson: "Do you know how that garbage-eating bear got his name?"

He told him. The mechanic picked up a wrench and went looking for the cook. Always fun and games in the Upper Wynoochee Valley.

In the cold, cold mornings, healthy neighbors jog along the edge of Snug Harbor. Their breath steams. They pant like anything.

Others hop into sweat suits and go biking on the 10-speed.

In the warm kitchen, Madame is chomping down the vitamins recommended by Adelle Davis, soothsayer to the diet set.

Everybody is for health. Leaping on new miracles at the drop of a B-12 capsule. In a few years, some medic will discover vitamins fry your liver. Jogging can drop you like a brick. The 10-speed is the only way to go — if you're in a hurry to go — if you're

Kansas Wheat Crop Is Record

Topeka, Kan. (AP) — Kansas wheat farmers produced a record 314.90 million bushels of wheat in 1972, a Crop and Livestock Reporting Service summary said Wednesday.

The 1972 production figure, up 5.70 million bushels from earlier estimates, surpassed the previous record of 312.61 million bushels in 1971.

Lincoln church news is carried on a special page in the "Sunday Journal and Star."

Doubling Of Fuel Costs Is Predicted

Omaha — Robert Marritz believes the energy crisis is real and will lead to doubled fuel costs in 10 years.

Marritz is trying to convince public, private and cooperative utilities in a nine-state area to plan for future power emergencies caused by shortages of natural gas and oil.

His proposed calls for construction of coal-fired generating plants and "high-voltage" transmission facilities.

Marritz said target date for starting the project is 1979. The plan would include parts of Nebraska, Kansas, Iowa, The Dakotas, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado and Minnesota.

Marritz, executive director and staff counsel of the Missouri Basin Systems Group of Denver, said a few more strategically located power facilities are an alternative to the general practice of transporting coal long distances from mine center to generating plants.

James L. Grahl, general manager of Basin Electric Power Cooperative in Bismarck, N.D., said there are "hundreds of billions of tons" of low-sulphur coal in Montana and North Dakota.

The problem, he said, is that two-thirds of the coal is wasted at local generator plants. So, the tens that has to be transported thousands of miles becomes a poor investment, he said.

Grahl and Marritz are attending the annual meeting of the Mid-West Electric Consumers Assn., meeting here through Thursday.

Grahl's cooperative works with Marritz.

Under the project blueprint, all utilities could purchase power from a regional facility. The rural cooperatives or small municipal utilities would most likely contract with a sponsoring utility which would join in financing, constructing, planning and operating power plants.

Collection Of Food, Candy For Macy Begin To Arrive

Omaha — Gifts of food and candy to brighten the Christmas of Omaha Indians living on the Macy, Neb., reservation were beginning to arrive Wednesday.

"The phone has been ringing off the hook," said a spokesman for the First Central Congregational Church, where donations were being collected.

He said the calls came from individuals and organizations asking to contribute.

The Omaha Tribal Council Monday said the Omahas appear headed for a gloomy Christmas.

They cited cutbacks in federal programs, high unemployment, inflation and depletion of wildlife on the reservation which had supplemented their meals.

The Indians are seeking food for the 100 neediest families and toys and candy for the children.

The gifts will be taken to the reservation and distributed by tribal leaders Dec. 23.

UNO Has Passed First Test In Meeting State Fire Code

Omaha — The University of Nebraska at Omaha has passed the first test in a $270,000 program to meet state fire codes, a school official said Wednesday.

But it will need about $100,000 more to complete the job, according to Don Peterson, director of campus construction.

He said the field house is now approved by the state fire marshal. Fire doors and a smoke detecting system were installed this fall.

UNO was ordered several months ago to remodel the field house and other campus buildings.

Fire alarm systems, smoke detectors and fire walls and doors are being installed in the administration building, the engineering building and library on campus and the Center for Urban Education.

Peterson said more doors should be installed in the engineering and administration buildings and two fire exit stairways should be added in the administration building.

Ex-Nebraskan To Lead USIA

•The New York Times

Washington — President Nixon continued his second-term reshuffling Wednesday, announcing a clutch of new appointments that included the nomination of James Keogh, a former White House speechwriter and a critic of press coverage of Nixon, to head the U.S. Information Agency.

The President's intention of nominating Keogh to succeed Frank J. Shakespeare Jr., who is returning to private life, was one of three high-level appointments announced by White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler. Ziegler said the President will nominate Joseph T. Sneed, dean of the Duke University Law School in Durham, N.C., as a deputy attorney general. Sneed will replace Ralph E. Erickson, whose departure for a "high judicial post" was announced previously.

Sneed, 52, taught in the law schools of Cornell and Stanford Universities, and the University of Texas, before going to Duke Law School. The President's legal alma mater.

Nixon has also designated Ronald H. Walker, a one-time assistant to former Interior Secretary Walter Hickel, and since June 1969 in charge of organizing presidential travels, as head of the National Park Service.

It was also announced that William H. Brown, will remain as chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

Keogh is a former executive editor of Time magazine who served as chief of research and writing in Nixon's 1968 campaign and, from January 1969 to December 1970 as a special assistant to the President with the role of chief of writing and research.

Since leaving the White House, Keogh has published

"Nixon and the Press" (1972), a study of relations between the President and the press that is highly critical of news media coverage. Keogh, 56, also wrote the script for the documentary film entitled "The Nixon Years—Change without Chaos," that was shown at the Republican National Convention in August.

Keogh Was Born In Platte County

Washington (UPI) — James Keogh, the native Nebraskan and former Omaha newspaperman who will be nominated to be director of the U.S. Information Agency, was born in Platte County, Neb., and was a graduate of Creighton University. ### 2 Measures Of Trade Balance Are Diverging

•The New York Times

Washington — Two important measures of the nation's balance of international payments moved in opposite directions in the third quarter, the Commerce Department reported Wednesday.

The "basic" balance, known formally as the balance on current account and long-term capital, showed a deficit of $2.22 billion in the third quarter, $250 million larger than the second quarter.

By contrast, the balance on current account improved, with a deficit of $1.79 billion, about $700 million less than in the second quarter.

'Peanuts' Creator Sued For Divorce

Santa Rosa, Calif. (AP) — Charles M. Schulz, millionaire creator of the world-famous "Peanuts" cartoon strip, is being sued for divorce by his wife, Joyce, court records disclosed Wednesday.

The petition for dissolution of marriage filed Monday in Sonoma County Superior Court here said the couple, married for 23 years with five children, separated on Nov. 15.

In her petition, Mrs. Schulz, 43, asked for alimony, custody of the two youngest children, Jill, 14, and Amy, 16, and child support. The couple's other children, who do not live at home, are a daughter, Meredith, 22, and two sons, Charles Jr., 20, and Craig, 19.

The family has lived for the past year on a 581-acre ranch in the Russian River country between Santa Rosa and Healdsburg.

Governor Signs Name-Changing Amendment

The Nebraska State Railway Commission took on its new name, the Nebraska Public Service Commission (NPSC), on Wednesday.

Gov. J. James Exon signed into law Tuesday a constitutional amendment authorizing the change, approved by voters in the Nov. 7 election.

An NPSC spokesman said the change involves only the name of the commission; its regulatory functions and powers remain the same.

Plan To Slash Air Fare Told

—The New York Times

New York — In the first domestic application of a radical new charter fare concept, United Air Lines announced plans Wednesday to slash fares on several major routes by as much as 65% on June 1.

Travelers must buy their tickets 90 days in advance to qualify for the bargains.

Under the plan, a New York-Los Angeles round-trip ticket would cost $129—compared with the present $336. And the price of a New York-Honolulu round-trip would be $229, compared with the current $468.

Geneva Talks Collapse
Meanwhile, five months of turbulent negotiations by 40 airlines over new trans-Atlantic fares collapsed in Geneva, threatening to trigger an anything goes price war for travel between North America and Europe beginning Feb. 1.

The two developments were closely related, although they occurred more than 3,000 miles apart. United's plan will utilize a new category of airline ticket, promulgated Sept. 27 by the Civil Aeronautics Board, that for the first time will allow a traveler to fly on low cost, non-scheduled charter flights.

CAB Blamed

And in Geneva, officials of the International Air Transport Association, the organization of 107 airlines that sets fares for scheduled flights on most international routes, said it was largely because of the CAB's action that airlines were unable to reach agreement on new fares.

Under rules of the IATA, airlines will be able to set their own rates on trans-Atlantic routes beginning Feb. 1 unless they can break their impasse.

In the past, the airlines have frequently come to the brink of a breakdown in agreements to charge identical rates, but in virtually all cases they reached agreement in the end.

However, an official at the IATA headquarters in Montreal said, "There's no hope now for agreement. There are no more negotiations planned, period. There will be an 'open rate' Feb. 1."

CRUSADE

The new prime minister of Afghanistan, Mohammed Musa Shafiq, said in Kabul Wednesday that he wants a crusade against drug smuggling and the cultivation of opium poppies in his landlocked country. Previous Afghan prime ministers have avoided comment on the issue.

Investors Reminded

New York (UPI) — Indicator Digest, Inc., says Wall Street has never been a one way thoroughfare and that pattern is sure to continue. "It's well to keep in mind that the bull market which lifted off from the major bottom in 1970 is now almost two-and-a-half years old," the firm adds.

Government Cancer Experts Plan To Investigate Reported Virus Link

Washington (AP) — Government cancer experts plan to investigate a reported virus link to cancer in findings that Dr. Albert Sabin, famed for developing the live-virus polio vaccine, calls "too good to be true."

Dr. Sabin and Dr. Giulio Tarro of Naples, Italy, have evidence that herpes virus, the kind that causes cold sores, "may indeed be found to be involved in the cause of a whole group of human cancers, while having nothing to do with other human cancers," Dr. Sabin said in Rio de Janeiro.

"Now, this is a result that I call 'too good to be true,' and as an old-timer I have always suspected that such results may turn out not to be true. Nevertheless, the path is clear for others to check these results, and then we shall know."

The National Cancer Institute this week announced plans to evaluate the findings, and said Dr. Tarro is being invited to come to the United States to assist in the evaluation.

The institute stressed that the Tarro-Sabin findings are still regarded as preliminary, but that if confirmed, the techniques they have developed "might provide a means to establish a relationship between human herpes simplex viruses and certain cancers, and may provide a means for the early detection of some types of cancer. At present, it has not been proved that herpes simplex viruses can cause cancer in humans."

Among the questions to be investigated is how the same virus which causes the common and harmless cold sore could somehow be implicated in cancer.

If a virus could be proven to be a cause of cancer, then the way presumably would be opened to developing a vaccine against at least that kind of cancer.

Dr. Sabin, formerly of the University of Cincinnati, now is president of the Weizmann Institute of Science in Israel.

What do doctors recommend for patients in pain?

Doctors all over the country dispense over 50,000,000 of these tablets to their patients each year.

There are many medications a physician or dentist can prescribe for pain. Some are narcotic, many are available only on prescription. But there is one pain reliever, available without prescription, doctors dispense again and again... Anacin.

Each year, doctors give over 50,000,000 Anacin tablets to their patients in pain. If doctors think enough about Anacin to dispense all these tablets, what better recommendation can you ask when you're in pain? You see, Anacin contains more of the pain reliever doctors recommend most than any other leading tablet.

Headache and dental pain is relieved incredibly fast; minor pains of arthritis are dependably eased for hours; even the aches and pains of colds and flu respond to Anacin. So the tension and depression that can be caused by such pain will be relieved too. And millions take Anacin without stomach upset.

When you're in pain, why don't you follow the practice of so many doctors and take the tablet a doctor might give you in his own office. Take Anacin.

Gas Rate Hike Hearing Recessed

Topeka (AP) — A hearing on an application by Kansas-Nebaska Natural Gas Co. for a $2.4 million rate increase in Kansas was recessed Wednesday until Jan. 3 by the Kansas Corporation Commission.

Dale Saffels, corporation commission chairman, said Hassel Sanders of Hastings, Neb., chief accountant for Kansas-Nebaska, will return to the stand for continued cross examination when the hearing reconvenes Jan. 3.

Kansas-Nebaska contends its rate of return on Kansas sales is now 3.97% and is asking for rates designed to produce a 9.47% rate of return.

The utility contends that a major factor in its low rate of return is the increased cost of newly-acquired supplies of gas obtained to meet commitments for supplying gas to present customers.

In Wednesday's hearing, William R. Chaney, a Kansas City, Mo., engineer, underwent cross examination. He was a witness for Kansas-Nebaska.

Cross-examination of J. W. Ashbury, of Hastings, Kansas-Nebaska Vice President-operations, also was completed. Testimony presented Tuesday indicated that if the commission grants the requested rate increase, domestic customers would have to pay about 12.79% more on the average.

The rates paid by irrigation customers would be increased an average of 32.26% and industrial customers an average of 49.73%.

Detective Given Credit For Solving Robberies

A detective with the Lincoln Police Department Wednesday was given credit for solving three recent armed robberies in Lincoln.

Warrants were issued Wednesday for two young men wanted in connection with the holdups. One of the men was reported to be in the custody of police in Compton, Calif. The other man was being sought in Philadelphia.

Police Inspector Robert Sawdon praised the determination and diligence of Detective Jerry Thomas in conducting investigation that, according to Sawdon, cleared the cases.

He said Thomas did some of the work on his own time and visited several towns during investigation which uncovered the identity and whereabouts of the suspects.

The three armed robberies reported solved were $350 allegedly taken from the Castle

Drive-In, 6001 Havelock, on Nov. 27, $185 allegedly taken from the Fenton Drug Store on Nov. 27 and $353 allegedly taken from Jack's Take Home Beverages, 27th and O on Oct. 28.

Court Asked To Overturn Tax Ruling

By The Associated Press
The Nebraska Supreme Court Wednesday was asked to overturn a State Board of Equalization ruling and order a decrease in the 1972 property tax valuations of land in Sioux County.

At issue is a board order earlier this year raising by 25% the valuations which had earlier been set at the lower rate by the Sioux County Board.

The action by the state board which sets tax rates, established the valuations at a level at which they had been recommended by a professional appraising firm.

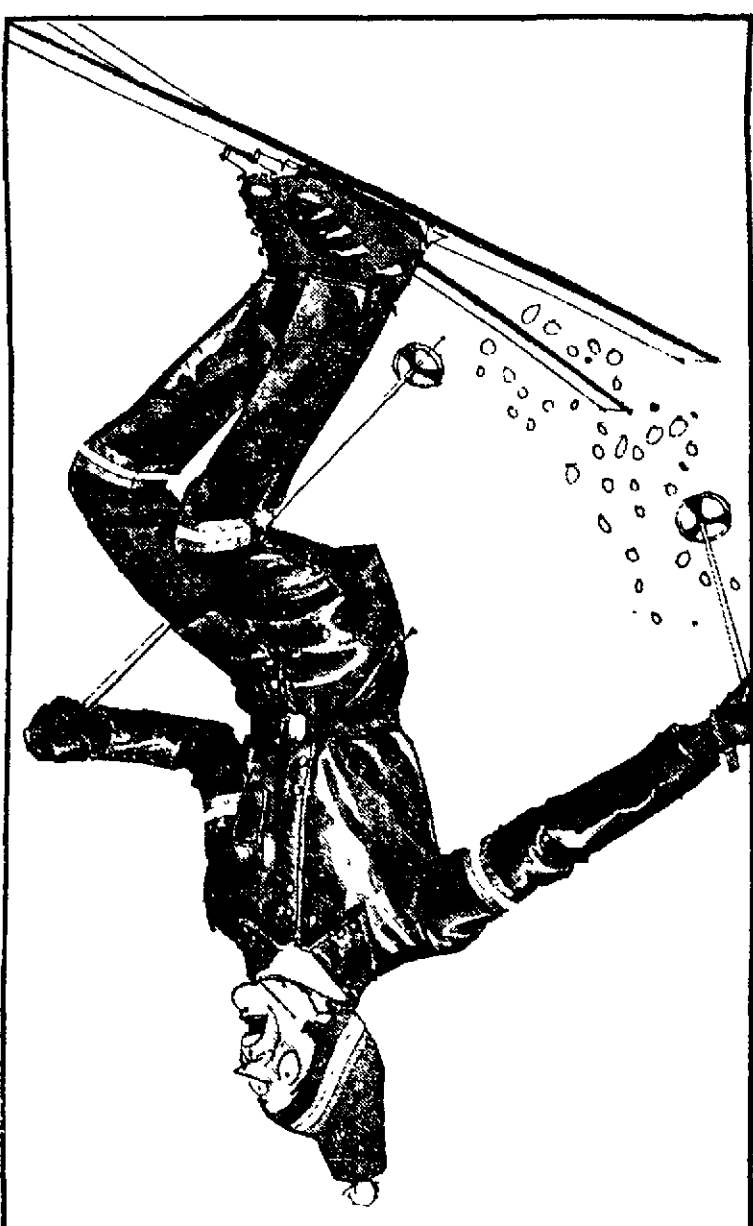

But Sioux County Attorney John Skavdahl told the high court in a brief Wednesday the state board had not given proper notice of the county's hearing before the board, and thus the order should be overturned.

Even if proper notice was given, Skavdahl argued the state board had no authority to overturn the county valuations by accepting the report of the appraising firm.

Skavdahl also contended acceptance of the professional report by the state tax commission as valid for the county was an "unauthorized delegation" of power for the tax commissioner's office.

Members Of Crime Panel Potshot At Grant Request

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Region II Crime Commission members Tuesday took verbal potshots Wednesday at a grant application for about $71,000 for the Nebraska County Attorneys Association, but nonetheless forwarded it to the state level.

The grant application, however, will be accompanied by several of the objections to the application raised at the commission's meeting.

The application, presented to the commission by Daniel W. Ryberg, executive director of the association, would provide for permanent staffing for lobbying and technical research.

Also included in the application were funds to send county attorneys to national seminars relating to criminal prosecution.

Several commission members objected to being asked to make a recommendation on a statewide plan, rather than a regional one.

Ryberg said that procedures required the application to be channeled through a unit of local government and that the Lancaster County Commissioners had agreed to be the sponsoring unit.

Larson Objects

Commission member Roger Larson also objected to Law Enforcement Assistance Administration funds being used for the purpose requested.

"Frankly, I think we'd just be helping the county attorneys set up a professional organization that's going to be a political tool. I think that's wrong," Larson said.

Commission Chairman Tom Pansing noted that sheriff's and police officer's organization provide their own funding and pay for their own lobbying.

Deputy County Attorney Bernie McGinn, however, told the commission that many county attorneys in outlying areas of the state need training.

"I'm not sure if you're aware of the high turnover rate in other counties," he said. "A lot of them only serve one term. Attorneys beg each other, 'Why don't you be county attorney this year?'" McGinn said.

Auditing Compromise?

In other action commission members expressed satisfaction that a compromise appears near on auditing problems that have been holding up federal funds for the School Resource Officers (SRO) program.

"This is the program we're most proud of," Pansing said. "This is our showpiece."

The compromise calls for refunding of $4,900 to the State Crime Commission. City funds already budgeted to the SRO program will be used.

Leighton Wessel, police community relations officer, submitted two proposals for possible Crime Commission funding in 1974.

One called for a $300,000 record-keeping computer and the other called for a $155,000 expansion of the city jail, allowing for segregation of juveniles, women and drug offenders.

UNL Official Has 'Strong Feelings' About Firms Selling Term Papers

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

Saying he has "strong feelings" on the subject, the University of Nebraska-Lincoln vice chancellor for student affairs said Wednesday he intends to investigate the possibility of legal action against companies which sell term papers to students on the campus.

"It's immoral, illegal and unethical," said Kenneth L. Bader in an interview. "The university ought not be a party to having this kind of operation exist."

An advertisement for "Termpaper Arsenal, Inc." has had a listing with a local agent's phone number in the want ads of the Daily Nebraskan this fall.

The student newspaper has been considering whether it should continue to accept the ads, or whether printing the ad might be an unethical practice.

Legal Action

At a meeting of the paper's publications board this week, however, Bader raised the possibility of legal action similar to the successful legal battles at Ohio State University and at other campuses around the country.

Bader came to Lincoln from Ohio State University.

In the interview, Bader said Ohio State successfully argued that such companies interfere with an "implied contract" between the student and the university. The implied contract, he said, was judged to include standards of "academic honesty."

The companies that sell term papers, he said, had argued that they were merely supplying background information to students. But Bader said student's at Ohio State told him they had submitted the papers as they were purchased.

Students Reluctant

One of the problems facing Ohio State, he said, was that students were reluctant to testify they had used the service and faculty members were often embarrassed that they hadn't discovered the papers were written by someone else.

But Bader said the papers were "so skillfully done" they even included "mistakes and erasures."

In Ohio, he said, a permanent injunction was granted that put the companies out of business there.

"We can't stand idly by and say these operations are in the best interest of the university," said Bader.

"If they are in the business of selling term papers, it's wrong and I will proceed to do something about it," he said.

Indian Students Help Write Job Description

A job description written to emphasize the Indian student counselor's role "in the campus proper" is being written at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln with the help of Indian students themselves.

Kenneth Bader, vice-chancellor for student affairs, said Wednesday interviews to fill the position vacated recently by John Twobirds (Arbuckle) will begin after the job description is completed.

Arbuckle, who is active in the American Indian Movement, resigned the post of Indian student counselor.

Bader confirmed that the Indian students on the campus had objected to his (Arbuckle's) lack of being present to help them."

Bader said although students who were able to contact Arbuckle said he assisted them, student concerns were over a "primary factor of absence."

"The old job description for the post was 'so general and loosely constructed it didn't really tie down the job we wanted to do,' said Bader.

The new one, he said, will have a "primary emphasis" on assisting Indian students "in the campus proper."

Bader said a number of persons have already either been nominated for the job or applied for the position.

Leroy Ramsey, director of minority affairs, is heading the effort to establish a job description with student help, said Bader.

Rhodes is charged with first degree murder in the shooting death of Fokke Fritz Snoeyjer, 21, of Grand Rapids, Mich. on May 19.

District Judge Hugh Stuart instructed the jury that four verdicts were possible, first degree murder, second degree murder, manslaughter or not guilty.

In closing arguments the prosecution said it had proved beyond reasonable doubt that Rhodes shot Snoeyjer in the back of the head with a .22 pistol. The prosecution said the "selective amnesia" was used by the defendant.

The defense contended that a possible "frame job" was involved.

Rhodes Trial Goes To Jury

Ogallala (AP) — The trial of 23-year-old Michael Wayne Rhodes went to a jury late Wednesday afternoon after completion of final arguments.

Rhodes is charged with first degree murder in the shooting death of Fokke Fritz Snoeyjer, 21, of Grand Rapids, Mich. on May 19.

District Judge Hugh Stuart instructed the jury that four verdicts were possible, first degree murder, second degree murder, manslaughter or not guilty.

In closing arguments the prosecution said it had proved beyond reasonable doubt that Rhodes shot Snoeyjer in the back of the head with a .22 pistol. The prosecution said the "selective amnesia" was used by the defendant.

The defense contended that a possible "frame job" was involved.

Bonacker Installed As Head Of Chamber Of Commerce

Glenn Bonacker of Cengas was installed as President of the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce Wednesday night at the chamber board of directors' annual dinner at the Lincoln Country Club.

Bonacker announced the appointment of eight new directors to one-year terms on the board, including Ken Clark, architect, George David, American Stores, Walter Henrich, Woodman Accident and Life Co.; Larry Rowan, Montgomery Ward, Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf, Gus Whitehead, Whitehead Oil Co. and attorney Flavel Wright.

Other officers elected with Bonacker in September and installed Wednesday night were Dale Tinstman, first vice president; John Olsson, second vice president; Leo Beck, third vice president; Paul Amen, treasurer and John F. Eker, secretary.

Directors newly elected for three-year terms were James Bradley, Thomas H. Brown, Robert Durrie, John F. O'Neill, Richard Randolph, Paul C.

Schorr III and Miles Tommeraaen.

Immediate past president of the chamber is William Smith of the First National Bank and Trust Co.

Herb Veltte, a member of the chamber's Contact Club, was given the President's Award for securing 47 new members for the chamber, the club high for this past year. Irv Chesen was presented a second life membership for his Contact Club work.

Articles Valued At Over $200 Reported Stolen

Lincoln police are investigating the theft of several items valued at over $200 from the Gary Dunn residence at 1502 Garfield Monday afternoon or evening.

Survey Casts Doubt On Common Assessment Of 1972 Election

By LOUIS HARRIS

Evidence from the latest Harris Survey casts serious doubt on a popular theory that President Nixon won re-election by a massive margin because (1) he was able to reassure white working families that he would end school busing to achieve racial balance, (2) convince businessmen and white collar workers of his intention to cut government spending and not raise taxes, and (3) persuade white union members and Southerners that he would not rock the boat by pressing for major gains for blacks and other minorities.

The roots of this common assessment is that the 1972 presidential election was a classic confrontation of a law-and-order, "anti-permissiveness" middle-of-the-road standpat Richard Nixon, on the one hand, against an extreme, left-wing, "radical" new politics George McGovern, on the other.

If this were indeed the basis on which 75 million Americans cast their ballots last Nov. 7, then a ringing mandate should have been registered for a wholesale cut-back in such causes as racial equality, help for the poor, and anti-pollution, as well as deep cuts in federal spending.

Yet a survey of public attitudes in depth shows that no such public expectations now exist, nor is there evidence that they ever did exist.

Spending Cut Doubtful
Nixon might have made noises during the campaign as a fiscal conservative, pledged himself to heavy cuts in federal spending and to no tax increase in the next four years. Yet, by 47-40%, the public does not think he will actually be able to "keep federal spending in line," and, by a much bigger 64-23%, people do not think he will actually be able "to avoid increasing federal taxes."

On the question of racial minorities and the poor, public expectations are completely opposite from that which the stand-pat interpretation of Nixon's election victory would have predicted. On school busing for racial purposes, by a narrow 42-40%, the public doubts Nixon can achieve his stated goal of preventing it from happening. By the same token, by a clear 52-32%, a majority does think he will "help minorities achieve equality," and an even higher majority of 58-32% believe that he "will expand help for the poor."

Far and away the most decisive expectation of Nixon on the domestic front in his second term is the 63-26% who feel that he will "make real progress in controlling air and water pollution," a matter notable in 1972 because it received a wide mandate almost without exception in state bond issues for cleaning up the environment. An even larger 83% said during the campaign that they would favor making air and water pollution one of the "two or three top priorities for the federal government in the next four years." Ironically, neither President Nixon nor Sen. McGovern focused on pollution as a major issue in the campaign.

Louis Harris

Nor is the evidence but-crossing this finding limited to Harris Survey polling results. The election returns themselves contain the same dramatic evidence. In 15 states last Nov. 7, Republican candidates for the U.S. Senate could be classified as being more conservative on nearly all issues than the President himself. In these states, Nixon received 68% of the vote, while GOP candidates for the U.S. Senate won no more than 52% of the vote. Republican conservatives ran 16 points behind the President.

Moderates and Liberals
By contrast, in six states, the Republicans nominated candidates who by no stretch of the imagination could be classified other than moderates or liberals. Most significantly of all, each of the six had pro-civil rights records (Percy, Ill., Smith, Me., Brooke, Mass., Case, N.J., Hatfield, Ore., Chaffee, R.I.). In these six states, Nixon's combined vote came to 57%, but the aggregate vote for the U.S. Senate was 61% Republican. In other words, Republican moderates and liberals ran four points ahead of Nixon, while GOP conservatives ran 16 points behind him. This massive 20 point difference between how conservatives and liberals within the Republican party fared certainly ought to be taken as handwriting on the wall politically.

Thus, the post-election evidence is simply not there that Nixon's mandate mirrors a deep and abiding desire on the part of voters to rally to the roster of so-called Middle America "social issues," centering on crime, permissiveness, and resistance to change.

Significantly, the voters themselves, by a 47-38% margin, rejected the image of the President as one who stood essentially for the status quo in his approach to government. And Nixon, himself, in a post-election statement has said he did not view his re-election as "simply an approval of things as they are" nor "an endorsement of the status quo," but rather he considered the election returns a demonstration of a nationwide desire for "change that works."

Pompidou For High-Level Consultations

By JAMES RESTON

Paris—President Pompidou of France is now in favor of consultations at the highest level to clarify U.S.-European monetary trade and political relations in the coming year.

In a private interview at the Elysee Palace the French president said world politics would be entering a new and difficult phase in 1973 but that the main thing was to get a better political understanding of the objectives of the United States the expanded Common Market of Europe and Japan.

Questions of money and trade, he said, tended to divide nations, but, important and urgent as these questions were, they were secondary to the larger political and philosophical questions that required more discussion in the future than they have had in the last few years.

His main point seemed to be that all the major nations in 1972 found themselves in a new situation, as they did at the end of World War II.

With the reorganization of Europe, the reconciliation of old feuds between Western Europe and the Soviet Union, the entrance of Britain into the European Common Market, the spectacular rise of Japan as a major world economic power, the emergence of China from isolation and the elections of President Nixon in the United States, Chancellor Brandt in West Germany, Prime Minister Tanaka in Japan, the time had come, he said, for a thoughtful reappraisal not only of money and trade questions, which tended to divide nations, but for a little more reflection on the things they are doing.

There was close and often tense cooperation between the technical and political questions. Pompidou said that while nations naturally lived with their own domestic problems, and were so busy that they had little time to think about what other nations were doing.

For example, he said, France was pleased to see President Nixon re-elected, and he agreed to President de Gaulle's conversion to the U.S. in 1969 had been a relief, but it was less significant for France and Europe than Washington's new and improved relations with the Soviet Union.

France also welcomed this, but what did it mean? the president asked.

Europe naturally welcomed these new links between Washington and Moscow in the limitation of strategic weapons and the mutual force reductions, and would participate in the European security conference in 1973, but he had to admit there were some fundamental questions about all this.

The Western European nations could not help asking themselves, he said, whether the United States and the Soviet Union would not be tempted to reach agreements between themselves that would minimize the influence of Europe and organize a peace that might be in their own interests, but leave Europe in a secondary position.

Washington and Moscow deny categorically, Pompidou said, that they have any such intention to impose the common interests of the dominant nuclear powers on Europe, but it was difficult for France and the other Western European nations to discard this hypothesis entirely.

Therefore, he said, it was necessary for the leaders of the major nations to talk about these larger questions. There was, he suggested, a suspicion in Western Europe that Washington and Moscow might be tempted to negotiate some kind of demilitarized zone in the heart of Europe—sort of a modified Rapacki Plan—that might seem reasonable to the big nuclear powers but might raise fundamental questions for the security in Europe, which, after all, was more fundamental to the Western European nations than to either the United States or the Soviet Union.

Just a Doubt

Pompidou did not say this was what President Nixon or Chairman Brezhnev had in mind. He said this was a prevailing doubt in many Western European minds, and he mentioned it only to illustrate the need for more communication between the major powers to avoid misunderstandings in the coming year.

It was also essential, Pompidou said, that the major nations and trading nations of the world begin to talk about their common political objectives before they started quarreling about money and commerce.

Pompidou was frank and even blunt about this.

Europe, he said, was on the point of organizing an expanded economic community or common market. It was a very complicated problem, but he seemed to be concerned about whether the United States would in fact help it through its difficulties of bringing Britain and other nations into the new expanded European Economic Community, or whether, worried about the increasing competition of the Common Market, Washington would actually put barriers in the way in the economic integration of the continent.

The security of the West was another problem, Pompidou said. What did the United States really want to do about this in its own interests? This was another problem that required the most patient and cautious and trustful analysis.

Problems At Home

These were only the most obvious questions to be discussed, Pompidou said. He has great problems at home in France. He has parliamentary elections coming up. He is going to Moscow early in the new year, and the latest polls here indicate that the Socialists and Communists are beginning to challenge the Gaullists for control of the French parliament.

But beyond all these things, there were other questions.

Japan's relations with China, for example, he said. The development of Siberia—should it be done primarily by the United States and Japan or by Europe as well? The main point, he suggested, was clear: No single nation could solve even its own economic problems by itself. Only common action by the principal powers could resolve national problems. All the nations had to deal with the problems of security, diplomacy, money and trade. None of them, he seemed to be saying, could find security or even solvency, alone.

"Christmas In New England"

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON

A New England Christmas. Even those who have not visited this historic part of the United States, experience a certain feeling of familiarity when the thought of the holidays in New England comes to mind. Perhaps the feeling is born of nostalgia, or perhaps it develops because the region is such fair game for photographers, artists and writers. But for whatever reason it occurs, that mystical sense of kinship with the land and the heritage of New England is especially noticeable at Christmastime.

In a recently-published volume entitled "Christmas In New England" (Holt, Rinehart and Winston), writer Joanne Young and photographer, Taylor Lewis, Jr., have combined their literary and artistic efforts, and have succeeded in capturing the essence of this special place at this very special time of year.

From the peacefully-rolling hills of the countryside, to the hustle and bustle of Boston, the winter holidays are portrayed as a time characterized by warmth and gaiety, blazing fires and jingling sleigh bells, and, most of all, by the singular beauty that is New England.

"When winter storms threaten, New England farms are like small, sturdy fortresses, drawing in the family, the dog, the cat, to their snug hearthside. Tall woodpiles, which have grown daily next to barns or back doors, promise that fires will stay kindled. A full pantry and freezer, where the summer's largesse has been stored, assure that even a growing boy's endless appetite will be satisfied, no matter how high the snowdrift rise between the house and road."

Mr. Lewis has taken his camera across

New England — from Cape Cod to Boston to Newport; from tiny village to busy metropolis—capturing the pictorial highlights of the season in question. When combined with Miss Young's sparkling narrative, these full-color photographs are transformed into a chronicle that will be enjoyed by readers of all ages—at Christmas and throughout the year.

Charles Dickens once wrote: "And I do come home at Christmas. We all do, or we all should. We all come home, or ought to come home, for a short holiday — the longer, the better — from the great boarding-school, where we are forever working at our arithmetical slates, to take, and give a rest." "Christmas In New England" makes one feel a little closer to home.

Included on the national best-seller list this week are the following books:

FICTION

1. Jonathan Livingston Seagull, Bach
2. August 1914, Solzhenitsyn
3. Semi-Tough, Jenkins
4. On The Night Of The Seventh Moon, Holt
5. The Odessa File, Forsyth

NONFICTION

1. I'm O.K.—You're O.K., Harris
2. The Best And The Brightest, Halberstam
3. All Is But A Beginning, Neihardt
4. The Peter Prescription, Peter
5. Open Marriage, O'Neill and O'Neill

Mrs. Richard Johnson and her daughters, Lynn and LeeAnne, and Mrs. Mollie Johnson paid prenuptial courtesy to Miss Reed at a miscellaneous shower, which was held on Friday, Oct. 6, at the Richard Johnson home.

The marriage of Miss Reed, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Reed, to James Schriener will be an event of Friday, evening, Dec. 29. The 7 o'clock ceremony will be solemnized at Faith United Methodist Church.

IN suburbia

Soon Christmas eve will be here and children's ears will be listening for the sounds of reindeer and sleigh bells. Already, youngsters in every home are eyeing the brightly wrapped packages and wondering what games and trinkets will be stuffed into their Christmas stockings.

Meanwhile, the parents are preparing for holiday guests, parties and dinners, as well as organizing everyday family functions. So, our news in suburbia this week is varied, as we talk about birthdays, parties, guests and Christmas activities which are on the agenda.

As though the holiday season is not hectic enough in itself, comings and goings, birthdays and short trips have kept everyone busy at the Eastborough home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Ruyle.

Taking the family's current events in chronological order we will begin with Friday, Dec. 1, when Mr. and Mrs. Ruyle and their children, Patricia, Sherri, Nancy, Joan and Bob, traveled to Wahoo. In Wahoo, the family met their friends Mr. and Mrs. Ray Harmon and their three children, Nancy, Steeve, and Tom of Nickerson.

Their visit was brief because the main reason that the two families met in Wahoo was to let Nancy and Sherri Ruyle return with the Harmon's to their home where they spent the weekend. During their stay the two girls experienced life on the Harmon farm, and they also enjoyed a basketball game in Arlington on Saturday.

On Sunday, the Harmon family members were dinner guests at the Ruyle home, when they came to Lincoln, bringing Nancy and Sherri with them.

On Thursday, Dec. 7, Patricia Ruyle celebrated her 11th birthday, and she and three friends enjoyed cake and ice cream at her home after school. The guests included Miss Kathy Rooney, Miss Ginny Keeler and Miss Kim Pearce.

Mr. and Mrs. Ruyle decided that the family would enjoy seeing the Christmas lights and decorations at Westroads Shopping Center in Omaha. So they traveled to Omaha on Sunday, Dec. 10, and then while they were there, they also visited Mr. Ruyle's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ruyle.

"I'll Be Home for Christmas" is one of the most sentimental of the contemporary Christmas carols, but the tune certainly has a great deal of meaning to parents whose children are away at school, pursuing professions in other areas of the country, or serving in the U.S. military.

Among the suburban families anxiously awaiting the holiday arrivals of other family members and loved ones are Mr. and Mrs. Howard Morris of Trendwood, whose daughter, Cindy, plans to arrive sometime today from Vassar College where she is a coed.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry A. Witt of Southwood already have finalized their plans for the three-day Christmas weekend which is just around the corner. On Saturday, Dec. 23, the couple and their two daughters, Lisa and Lori Nicole, will spend the day at the home of Mrs. Witt's mother, Mrs. Goldie Zajcek. Also included in the festivities, which will feature a pre-Christmas celebration, will be Mrs. Witt's brother, Len Zajcek of Omaha.

And then on Saturday, Dec. 24, the suburban family will be guests at the holiday celebration held at the home of Mr. Witt's parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Witt. Other guests for the Christmas Eve dinner will be Mr. Witt's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Dudley of Benet, and their family.

Following all of the family gatherings, the suburban residents plan to spend a quiet Christmas day at their home — opening their Christmas stockings, seeing what Santa Claus has left behind, and sharing a family dinner. Later that afternoon, however, the Witts will be looking forward to visits from some special friends, including Mr. and Mrs. Tom Adams.

Abby: "no rice, no dice"

DEAR ABBY: I am a 24-year-old woman whose divorce will be final in three months. I recently met a 44-year-old man. He is intelligent and charming. He says he loves me and will marry me the very moment I am free.

There is only one problem. He will wait for me only if I consent to live with him until my divorce is final, and agree to start a family immediately!

To support his argument he says he isn't getting any younger and can't afford to lose any time. Also, if I become pregnant he's sure I won't change my mind.

Abby, this is contrary to everything I believe in and I can't agree to such a deal. But I dearly love this man and don't want to lose him. Can you help me?

DESPERATE IN BROOKLYN

DEAR DESPERATE: You would have to be "desperate" to go for a deal like this. Tell him, "no rice, no dice." And if he really loves you, you won't lose him.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I disagree on something and want to settle it.

He appreciates fine wine and most of our friends are aware of it so occasionally when we invite guests for dinner they bring a bottle of wine.

My husband thanks them for it, puts it away, and then he serves a wine of his own choice with our dinner.

We were recently criticized for not serving the wine a guest had brought that evening.

My husband insists that when someone brings wine, it is a gift for us and we are under no obligation to serve it. I say if a guest brings a bottle of wine no matter what wine we had intended to serve, we should serve the wine the guest brought. Maybe I'm wrong but I am not having another dinner party until I find out.

ON THE FENCE

DEAR ON: Get off the fence on your husband's side. He's right. (P.S. If it is understood in advance that a dinner guest is bringing the wine, then that wine should be served.)

DEAR ABBY: I am worrying about a problem that is more than a year and a half old but I can't help it.

We have a son who will graduate from high school a year from next June. He says when he graduates he wants to leave home with just a few dollars in his pocket and hitchhike across the country for an indefinite period of time. We wouldn't mind if he wanted to leave home and catch his own excitement or go to college or join the armed forces, but he doesn't want to do any of these things. He just wants to "bum around" for a while.

I worry about him for several reasons. First he is a rather immature boy for his years. He's on the thin and spindly side and if he missed several meals it wouldn't be good for his health. Also, I fear for his safety. He's never been away from home alone and he is such a trusting soul.

How can I change his mind, Abby? Or should I try?

WORRIED MOTHER
DEAR MOTHER: So much can happen between now and the time your son graduates, why worry about it now? He may meet a girl and fall in love, or decide he wants to go to college, join the armed forces, or get a job. Or he may even mature by then, so in the meantime, don't communicate your fears to him or try to change his mind.

Morning Wedding

At a 10:30 o'clock ceremony which was solemnized on Saturday morning, Nov. 25, the marriage of Miss Bonnie L. Reilly, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Reilly of Orleans, to Steven L. Clapham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Clapham of Coral Gables, Fla., took place at St. Mary's Catholic Church.

Miss Frances Reilly served as the bride's honor attendant, and the threesome of bridesmaids included Miss Diane Reilly, Miss Sheila Reilly and Miss Teresa Reilly, both of Orleans.

Gaylin Denker attended Mr. Clapham as best man, and the groomsmen and ushers were Jon Toomsen, Barney Solomon, and Duane Rhode of Elm Creek.

For her wedding, the bride chose a gown of ivory peau de soie fashioned in the bell silhouette. The fitted bodice featured long sleeves and a high neckline accented with lace. Beneath the Empire waistline, the skirt was accented with a panel of miniature tucks edged with lace. A detachable, chapel-length train added back interest to the gown. A headpiece of lace and pearls held in place her lace-edged fingertip veil of illusion, and she carried a bouquet of daisies, rosebuds and gypsophila centered with an orchid.

The bride attended the Lincoln school of Commerce and the University of Nebraska. Mr. Clapham was graduated from the university, where he majored in accounting.

Pinata Highlights Children's Day Party

The United States once was nicknamed "The Melting Pot," and, although that phrase rarely is used today, we Americans still are beneficiaries of traditions which come from all over the world.

Among those traditions, is the Pinata, which was borrowed from our southern neighbors, the Mexicans. A pinata is a brightly colored paper ornament which is stuffed with candy and other treats for 'children' of all ages. The treats are obtained by bating the figure with a stick until the container breaks, revealing its delightful contents.

A Santa Claus pinata was the highlight of the annual Children's Day Party which was sponsored by the International Women's group on Wednesday morning, Dec. 13. The organization which planned the party is composed of a group of women with international backgrounds, ties, and interests.

Other decorations for the party held at the First Presbyterian Church included oranges bearing snowflake flags, another reminder of the Mexican heritage of many of our citizens.

Opening lead - ace of clubs.

Assume you're in six diamonds and West leads the ace and another club. Everything looks shipshape until you lead the A-K of trump, learning that East started with four to the jack.

Of course you'd like to now lead a trump from dummy and finesse, but this is hard to do when there are no more trumps in dummy. So, to make the hand, you must try to reach a position where, in effect, you can take a trump finesse without leading a trump.

You start the process by playing a heart to the ace and ruffing a heart. Then you play a spade to the ten and ruff another heart. As a result of these maneuvers, you are even up with East in trumps and, after you lead the jack of spades to the queen, you have East in trumps and, after you lead the jack of spades to the queen you have East over a barrel, for this is the position.

No Fuel Shortage Foreseen At NU

Although colder weather this fall has resulted in higher consumption of fuel oil by the power plants on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Campus, the University apparently will be able to get all the fuel oil it needs, but at a higher cost.

The price of fuel oil used by the university has increased 50% to 100% in the past two years, according to Verne Traut, manager of utilities in the Physical Plant.

Traut said that up to Dec. 4, 1972, the power plant had used 645,000 gallons of fuel oil compared to 420,000 gallons by the same date a year ago. This represents an increase of about 225,000 gallons to date.

Increased consumption of fuel oil can be traced to colder temperatures which have prevailed this fall compared to last year.

University power plants on the City campus and the East Campus are equipped to burn both natural gas and fuel oil. Like other large users of natural gas, the university has an agreement to switch to fuel oil when gas is needed for heating homes.

The university burns fuel oil about 75 to 80 days per year. Last winter the university burned slightly more than 3.3 million gallons of fuel oil during the heating season.

This Week's Health Tip

Christmas decorating can cause home accidents unless some cautions are observed. The Nebraska Medical Association suggests while putting up your tree that you leave plenty of walking space.

Be sure to use a strong ladder for putting the glitter in hard to reach places.

Throw away worn strings of lights that have bare wires or broken sockets as they are fire hazards and can also give an electric shock. If you are stringing outside lights, be sure to use rubber gaskets on the bulbs to keep out moisture and check that all connections are tight and waterproof.

Do not let the tree get dry, because a dry tree around a fireplace or abnormal heat or even a spark of static electricity can create an instant fire. Keep the tree watered from the day you buy it.

As the presents are unwrapped, make sure the ribbons and wrappings are promptly disposed of since a lighted match or carelessly tossed cigarette can cause a Christmas tragedy.

Lectures Slated By Former NU Faculty Member

Nelson's field of research deals with how people's language behavior is related to their behavior in general and how this behavior is determined.

China 'Might' Give Japan Military Aid

Washington — Premier Chou En-lai has informed Japanese officials that he could conceive of circumstances in which his nation would come to Japan's aid militarily if Japan were attacked by the Soviet Union, according to a well-placed Japanese and American official.

Such a statement, the officials said, was made by Chou to Premier Kakuei Tanaka during the Japanese leader's visit to Peking in September. Later, similar remarks were made to other visiting Japanese political leaders of various political beliefs, they added.

According to these sources, both diplomatic and military, the first such assertion by Chou came when Tanaka was trying to assure Chinese leaders that Japan's plans to double her military expenditures over the next five years did not reflect any thought of building a powerful force capable of operations beyond the defense of her home islands.

Rather than expressing concern, the officials said, Chou reportedly said he welcomed a "reasonable growth" of Japanese strength as a potential counterweight to the Soviet Union's "aggressive designs" in Asia.

Might Give Aid

According to this account, Chou said that if the Soviet Union deployed its Far East fleet on a regular basis south of the Korea Strait into the East China Sea, or if it engaged in direct military operations against Japan, the Chinese premier could "visualize a situation" in which China would come to Japan's aid even alongside forces of the United States.

Japanese and American sources said the substance of this message was repeated by Chinese officials to a delegation of leaders of the Japanese Socialist Party, which has been vociferously opposed to the strengthening of the self-defense forces in Japan.

The sources stressed that neither Tokyo nor Peking viewed the prospect of Soviet aggression against Japan as likely. But, they said, Chinese officials are enormously worried about Soviet intentions regarding China and are attempting in every possible way to "bury the hatchet" with nations that might be helpful in deterring potential Soviet military action against China.

A well-placed Japanese official, in an interview during his recent visit to Washington, confirmed the substance of the conversation between Chou and Tanaka. He asked that his name not be used.

Americans Convinced

American officials, without revealing the manner in which they say they learned independently of such conversations, declared that they were persuaded of the accuracy of the reports.

Furthermore, they said the reports are totally consistent with Chinese declarations made to President Nixon during his visit to Peking last February, and to representatives of other Western nations, including West Germany.

One high-ranking American analyst commented: "Peking's principal preoccupation is with the Russian threat. With more than half of the Soviet armed forces now deployed east of the Ural Mountains—with one-third of the total force, in fact, arrayed along the Chinese-Soviet border—they are looking for ways to undercut what they see as a threat of encirclement."

The United States, officials said, has been urged by the Chinese to go slow in any plans to remove forces from the Far East after a Vietnam cease-fire. Both American and West German officials, further, have been cautioned about rushing headlong into troop withdrawals in Central Europe in forthcoming negotiations with the Soviet bloc on mutual reduction of forces.

The Chinese were frank to say, the sources declared, that while the Soviet build-up along the Chinese borders had been accomplished so far primarily by establishing new divisions and by shifting some divisions and squadrons from the interior of the Soviet Union, a major reduction of forces in Europe could be expected to free additional Soviet troops for duty along the long, contested Soviet-Chinese border.

ROTC Enrollments 'At Lowest Ebb'

Washington (AP) — The Pentagon acknowledged Wednesday that college Reserve Officers' Training Corps enrollments "are at their lowest ebb in 25 years," despite a cooling of the Vietnam war issue and an easing of campus unrest.

At the same time the Defense Department professed to see signs pointing to a possible upward trend in the future.

New figures showed that a total of 72,459 students were signed up for ROTC at the beginning of this school term.

This means that college ROTC rolls were slimmer for the sixth straight year, a decline of 10,574 from last year and 191,749 below 1966 when the slide began.

However, the Pentagon said that the ROTC is producing enough officers to meet the needs of the shrinking regular armed forces, when combined with Officer Candidate Schools and the service academies.

2 Main Causes

Defense officials attribute the drop in ROTC enrollment to two main causes:

—Lower and lower draft calls in recent years as the Vietnam war has wound down and the Pentagon has moved toward an all-volunteer force.

—A decline in the number of schools requiring all physically-fit male students to undergo at least two years of ROTC training. Currently, only 21 colleges compel ROTC training, about one-fifth of the number in the late 1960s.

The ROTC is starting to become coed, and the October 1972 enrollment includes 1,656 women ROTC cadets.

The Air Force, which opened its ROTC to women three years ago, had 1,427 cadets. The Army and Navy decided to admit women to their ROTC units only a few months ago and together their female students number only 239.

Among the hopeful signs, in the Pentagon's view, is a diminishing of losses. This year's drop from a year ago totals 13.7% and was roughly half the 28.8% decline registered in 1970.

The Pentagon noted also that there were ROTC units on 392 campuses this year, more than ever before and an increase of 18 from last year.

"It is notable that no college or university has unilaterally requested withdrawal of the ROTC in the past two school years," the Pentagon said.

The Navy was the only one of the three services to report an increase in ROTC enrollment since last year. Its 8,211 ROTC students represented a 505 rise over last year.

The Army ROTC dropped 8,940 to 41,294 and the Air Force went down 2,139 to 22,954.

Colorado Avalanche Kills Skier

Steamboat Springs, Colo. (UPI) — An avalanche, rumbling down the slopes of Mount Werner Wednesday through an area declared safe from snow slide threats hours earlier, buried and killed a 19-year-old Illinois skier under tons of snow.

The victim, Steve Crist of Evanston, Ill., was covered by four feet of snow for 20 minutes before other skiers could dig to his body.

Officials at the Steamboat Springs ski area said they had touched off explosive charges in the same area earlier in the day to remove the danger of avalanches. After the charges were set off the slopes were declared safe and opened.

Crist was skiing near the top of the mountain with two companions when the slide hit. Jud Cooley and Ian Kneer, both of Evanston, escaped.

A few skiers further down the slope were caught by a portion of the avalanche, but were not buried and quickly freed themselves.

Other changes being proposed by the Board include instituting a new five day season ticket for senior citizens, for $50, and raising the greens fee at both Holmes and Pioneers Golf Courses.

Soviet Union Economic Growth Dроops

• The New York Times

Moscow — Premier Alekssei N. Kosygin, in his second major pronouncement on the economy this fall, has disclosed that the Soviet Union's rate of growth in 1972 was lowest in last 10 years.

The disclosure, in the form of a national income statistic, reflects for the first time the over-all impact of this year's serious grain-crop failure on the Soviet economy. The poor crop forced Soviet leaders to buy large quantities of grain abroad to insure adequate food supplies and save the nation's livestock herds.

Figures given by the premier in a published review of the Soviet economy show that national income increased by only 4% in 1972 compared with a planned 6%. It was the lowest annual growth rate since the catastrophic crop year of 1963.

The Soviet premier said the economic plan for next year, to be announced Monday, had been revised upward to make up for the decline in the growth rate in 1972.

"The planned rates of growth of national income have been raised compared with the preceding two years," Kosygin said in the economic report, published in the current issue of Kommunist, an authoritative Communist Party journal.

National income, a key index of economic performance in the Soviet Union, is a net growth measure, representing the total value added by labor through manufacturing. It is not directly comparable, without a great deal of adjustment to methods of national-growth accounting used in the West.

Meanwhile, an 11-month economic review showed a continuing decline in the planned growth of labor productivity in industry, apparently contributing to the slow increase of national income.

Productivity Up

The report said that productivity through November had risen by 5.4%. The rate set by the economic plan for all of 1972 was 6.1%.

Significant improvement of labor productivity, which is about one-half of that of the United States in industry and as little as one-fifth in farming, has been viewed as essential if the nation is to fulfill the current five-year plan, ending in 1975.

The 11-month report, which appeared in the weekly Ekonomicheskaya Gazeta, also indicated a decline of the rate of growth in industry in the second half of 1972 after an apparent mid-year recovery from a bad winter.

Industry is usually a privileged sector of the economy, generally exceeding planned goals. However, the latest report gave the growth rate so far as 6.7%, down from a 6.8% pace in the first six months. The planned rate for all of 1972 was 6.9%.

Among industries that failed to meet goals was the production of natural gas. The Soviet gas industry is generally regarded as a growth industry and has been viewed as a potential source of fuel for the energy-short U.S.

The standard performance revealed in the statistics has not been reflected so far in any significant consumer shortages, at least in Moscow, Leningrad and other cities generally visited by foreigners.

Most Forthright

Kosygin's economic analysis was his most forthright statement since he warned planners in a major speech on Sept. 20 that stringent savings and reduction of waste would be needed next year to make up for costly crop failure.

Alluding to the expensive grain purchases abroad, he called on Soviet industry to cease buying goods that could also be manufactured at home and he demanded a cutback in new construction starts in view of the increasing volume of unfinished carryover from previous years.

In his latest statement, reviewing Soviet performance since the start of the current five-year plan in 1971, he said national income had risen by 10% over the first two years of the plan. Since the growth rate had been 6% in 1971, the increase for the current year could thus be derived as being about 4%.

It was the second time in two years that the rate of growth had declined. It was 9% in 1973.

The premier listed expected 1972 production for several basic industrial commodities, suggesting that a number of primary industries would not meet their targets. They included petroleum and natural gas as well as the generation of electric power. Steel was shown to be on target, with an output of 126 million metric tons, and coal mining somewhat above the planned level of 630 million tons.

Dayan Asserts Israel Benefits Economically From Occupied Arab Lands

The New York Times

Jerusalem — Defense Minister Moshe Dayan asserted Wednesday that a "tremendous social, economic and technological revolution" is under way in the Arab territories occupied by Israel since the 1967 war.

In a vigorous defense of his policies in the occupied areas against criticism by other members of the government, Dayan argued that Israel was benefiting rather than suffering from its economic integration with the territories.

To support his argument, he made public for the first time figures on the revenue Israel is earning from the captured Egyptian oil wells in the Sinai Desert.

$85 Million

Since 1967, Dayan said, a total of $85 million worth of oil has been pumped from the Sinai wells. The oil is now being drawn at a rate of $20 million per year, he said, which is roughly equivalent to Israel's annual oil consumption.

Dayan defended his policies in an hour-long speech before the Knesset, the Israeli parliament, which voted later to hold a full-scale debate on the occupied territories in the near future. He spoke softly but forcefully from a sheet of handwritten notes, occasionally punctuating his remarks with a sharp tap of the finger on the rostrum.

His speech was part of a protracted debate that has been under way for several weeks here among top members of the ruling Labor Party over Israel's policies towards the occupied areas.

As the minister most directly responsible for the military administration of the areas, Dayan has advocated a policy of political normalization and economic integration with Israel.

His tactic has been criticized by finance Minister Pinchas Sapir and others as a potential form of "creeping annexationism" that threatens the Jewish nature of the state and forces a close negotiating position.

Although they have existed for some time, the differences among the ministers have become more obvious and dramatic with the approach of the Israeli election year.

Describing the "revolution" he believes is under way among the 1.1 million Arabs in the occupied territories, Dayan noted that the standard of living has increased by 45% in the West Bank of the Jordan by 58% in the Gaza Strip since 1967. There is now nearly full employment in both areas, he said.

This economic revolution, Dayan said, has produced a profound change in attitude among the Arab residents of the area, particularly the estimated 250,000 refugees of the Gaza Strip.

"They have become refugees de jure," he said. "They are working, earning trades, using their money to improve their living conditions." Dayan added that one-fifth of the refugees will have either new housing or improved housing by the end of next year.

Dayan's assessment was in sharp contrast with that of Sapir, who argued in a speech last month that "a rising standard of living is no compensation for national aspirations." On the contrary, Sapir said, "we have learned to our regret that terrorists most often spring from the intelligentsia."

Dayan also challenged the finance minister's earlier contention that a "master-slave relationship" was developing between Israelis and Arab workers.

"Rather than being a master and slave, as some have suggested," Dayan said, "Jewish and Arab workers are going to their jobs in the same overalls."

Describing the Israeli investments in the occupied areas, Dayan said a total of $300 million had been spent since 1967 building the security infrastructure in the Sinai, Gaza Strip, West Bank and Golan Heights. This includes the fortifications, security roads, communications and air strips.

In addition, Israel has constructed a total of 42 new settlements in the areas, which now have a combined population of 4,200 Israelis.

Much of this expense, Dayan said, has been offset by direct revenues from the areas, such as the Sinai oil, sales and customs duties, and the indirect revenue from goods purchased by the Arab residents of the areas in Israel.

"The Arabs in the territories may have gained from our administration," he said. "But Israel has not lost."

Bolivia Arrests A Former Nun

(c) Washington Star-News
Washington — A former Maryknoll nun from Fairhaven, Mass., has been arrested by Bolivian security police and charged with being a member of the anti-government Ejercito Liberacion Nacional, according to word received here from La Paz.

She is Mary Elizabeth Harding, 40, who had left the Maryknoll Order and was working as an English teacher in the United States-sponsored American-Bolivian Cultural Center in the Bolivian capital. Miss Harding has been working in Bolivia for the last 14 years among the poor and as a factory employee.

Little Girl, Dog To Be Reunited

Tampa, Fla. (UPI) — A 2-year-old collie was airborne Wednesday for Madrid, Spain, and a Christmas reunion with a heartbroken child whose health has been endangered by grief over their separation.

Four-year-old Vanessa Malendez and her dog Wa-Wo, were separated in August when her father, U.S. Air Force Capt. Ismael Malendez, was transferred from here to Madrid.

But Little Vanessa mourned the loss of her friend and companion and her grief became progressively worse, raising concern for her health.

Doctor's Advice
A doctor advised the parents to try to get the dog back and bring it to Madrid to protect the child's health.

Wa-Wo was traced to his new home, where the owners agreed to sell the dog back when they heard about Vanessa.

But then Mrs. Rosemary Shapiro, director of the Humane Society, was faced with a new problem — getting the dog to Madrid without delay.

Mrs. Lois Noriega and Mrs. Betty Leto, owners of a travel agency, knew the necessary paper work would take time because notarized health papers would have to be sent to the Spanish consul in New York and then returned before the dog could be shipped.

They decided to take a chance and ship the dog on to Madrid, noting that the health papers were up-to-date.

Spanish Compassion
The two women said they think the worst that can happen will be that Capt. Malendez will be fined. But they said they feel the Spanish are compassionate and will allow the reunion.

But even if the dog is quarantined for a period after arrival, Vanessa will know he is there and probably will get to see him, they said.

"Oh, God, I do hope this will help the little girl," said Mrs. Leto, mother of three teen-agers.

Wa-Wo flew aboard a National Airlines flight to Miami where he was hand-carried by cargo personnel to a Pan American World Airways plane for the flight to Madrid.

The Malendez family was notified Wa-Wo was on his way.

Burger Champions Nonsmokers

Washington (UPI) — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger has decided to fight for the rights of nonsmokers.

The issue of cigar and cigarette smoke in Amtrak's Metroliner cars between Washington and New York drew the chief justice to write a letter of complaint to outgoing Transportation Secretary Joan A. Voge Nov. 30, reminding him that, according to the surgeon general, "where smoking is permitted in an enclosed area, nonsmokers are exposed to as much risk as habitual smokers."

An Amtrak spokesman reported that effective Dec. 8, cigar and pipesmoking has been banned in the Metroliner cars, the only car on the train for first class passengers who pay an extra fare.

In answer to a query, Burger said he had not smoked since the age of 9 when "I tried a whole cigar."

A partial text of the Burger letter, released Wednesday by the Supreme Court, related that when the chief justice complained to the conductor he was advised that he could go into one of the tourist class cars reserved for nonsmokers.

The letter read: "Tuesday of this week, Mrs. Burger and I took the Metroliner to New York and returned Wednesday. On the trip up the club car was polluted by three cigar smokers and on the return by four of them — all in addition to cigarettes. When I called the conductor, I was advised that nonsmokers could go to the next car — tourist class — and escape the smokers.

"I could hardly credit what I heard. Twenty-five nonsmokers, who paid for first class, could protect themselves from four smokers only by moving. This turns common sense and common decency on its head."

Cigarette smoking continues to be permitted in the Metroliner cars, the Amtrak spokesman said.

Cigarette Smoking 202.5 Packs Apiece

Washington (AP) — Americans are smoking a per capita average of 202.5 packs of cigarettes this year, a pack and a half less than estimated a few months ago, but still the most in four years, the Agriculture Department said Wednesday.

The new estimate, however, represents the most cigarettes smoked on a per capita basis for all Americans 18 and older since 1968 when the rate was nearly 210 packs.

A projection made last September by USDA put the 1972 rate at 204 packs. Per capita use of cigarettes includes smokers and non-smokers alike.

The revised puffing figure is 2.5 packs more than in 1971 and represents the second straight year that cigarette use has increased. It declined in 1969 and 1970 to fewer than 200 packs per capita before beginning to increase.

Americans averaged more than 217 packs each in 1963 before medical investigations linked smoking with lung cancer and other ailments.

Spokesmen said a slight increase in the per capita smoking is expected in 1972.

IRRC To Assess Social Concerns

The New York Times

New York — The creation of a new organization to help college endowment funds and other institutional investors assess issues involving corporate social responsibility was announced Wednesday.

The new group is called the Investor Responsibility Research Center, Inc. It currently is registering as an investment adviser with the Securities and Exchange Commission and has budgeted its first year's operations at $180,000.

The formation of the group is expected to have a major impact on the role of institutional investors in the business affairs of corporations. Some institutions have major stockholdings in many of the nation's biggest enterprises.

Until now, they have been reluctant to vote their shares in opposition to the management because they often felt they did not have access to all the pertinent facts. The new group, already becoming known by its initials as IRRC, will do the research to provide the facts.

IRRC lists as directors top-level administrative or faculty representatives from Harvard, Cornell, Stanford, Dartmouth, Princeton, Smith College, the Columbia Business School, Oberlin College, Boston University and Wesleyan of Connecticut.

Its initial funding has come from the Ford Foundation and the Rockefeller Foundation, which each put up $125,000, and the Carnegie Corporation, which put up $20,000. The treasurers or investment officers of these bodies also are on the IRRC board. Elliott J. Weiss, a Washington lawyer who has been named executive director of the group, said its goal would be to do the research on social issues, involving corporations, that would enable institutional shareholders "to make more informed judgments as to the merits of their positions."

Initially, he explained, the group would focus its research on the proxy issues raised at corporate annual meetings by consumer advocate groups, such as the one operated in Washington by Ralph Nader.

"We are in contact with a number of the shareholder public interest groups and we will be in contact with the others to find out what proposals will be made in the coming year," Weiss said.

He stressed that IRRC was entirely independent of these groups, would "deal on an arm's-length basis," and would merely conduct research, rather than make specific buy or sell recommendations.

"We will be providing a reliable base of information with which decisions could be reached effectively," said Stephen B. Farber, chairman of the IRRC board and assistant to the president of Harvard.

Weiss and Farber explained the role of IRRC at a news conference here although they said the group's offices would be in Washington.

In discussing the types of issues on which IRRC would develop research, they mentioned such possible areas as environmental pollution and racial balance in hiring practices in the South African operations of corporations.

Beet Growers Protest Purchase Of Great Western Co.

Gering, P. — A group of beet growers for the Scottsbluff and Gering districts were to go to Denver, Colo., Thursday to protest the purchase of Great Western Sugar Co. by the Great Western Cooperative.

The group was to attend the growers meeting during which the final vote will be taken on whether the co-op should continue with the purchase plans.

Members of the co-op and non-member growers will be in the protesting group. The protest was formed following a meeting Wednesday of about 70 beet growers in Gering.

Those planning to attend the Denver session said they were protesting the purchase since it will not be made in accordance with the original offer made to them about a year ago.

After reading the perfectus distributed since early November and having time to study it, the group said it believed growers are being asked for a "blank check" and that non-members may not be able to sell their beets to the co-op.

Those who attended the Gering meeting plan to gather as many of their neighboring growers as possible to add more strength to the Denver protest.

A Stamp Collector? Then pictures and news of new and old stamps in the "Sunday Journal and Star's" "Stamp News" column is a must.

Two Pre-Trial Release Programs Endorsed

An organization of young Lincoln attorneys Wednesday endorsed proposals for establishing two pre-trial release programs in Lincoln.

The Barristers Club took the action after the proposals were presented by Paul Galtier, chairman of the Lincoln Bar Association's pre-trial release program committee.

One proposal would establish a procedure under which police would take bail, following a court-set schedule of bail amounts for minor crimes.

The other proposal would set up a program under which law students would investigate the backgrounds of people jailed but not yet arraigned and recommend that some be released without bail. A judge would still make the final decision on release.

Supporters of the proposals argue that the programs would greatly lessen the possibility that police could sentence a person to up to three days in jail without a trial.

Galtier, noting that the Lincoln Police Department now releases many persons to attorneys before they appear in court, said the programs would not replace that system.

He said that in some instances a person might rather be released to an attorney so the attorney could appear in court for him at the next scheduled court session.

Galtier said there were two groups which appeared to be in opposition to the proposals, one group being the police department and the other "about four or five lawyers."

He indicated that the support of the Lincoln Bar Association is being sought to counter the opposition of the Lincoln Police Department.

Galtier said the city council would be asked to set up the bonding procedures for Municipal Court by city ordinance.

He predicted that if the bonding procedures are set up for municipal court, they will quickly be adopted by Lancaster County Court.

Youth Taken For Hair Ride

Boston (UPI) — James Taylor's long hair got caught in a transmission drive shaft Tuesday while he was working beneath his van truck.

The parked truck began rolling down hill and dragged him by the hair 200 feet as a busy intersection before he freed himself.

Police said Taylor, 18, was treated at a hospital for minor head and arm injuries.

Music news is covered thoroughly in the "Sunday Journal and Star."

Conservationists Express Worry About Choice Of Parks Director

The New York Times

Washington — The administration broke a long-standing tradition Wednesday in naming an assistant to a President as director of the National Park Service.

In appointing Ronald H. Walker, 35, the administration made a political appointment that drew immediate expressions of concern from conservation groups.

These groups have called for continuation of a nonpolitical, professional career director as the park system faces difficult times.

Under Fire

Walker replaces George B. Hartzog Jr., whose resignation is effective Dec. 31. Hartzog, a New Jerseyan who is a holdover from the Johnson administration, is among eight top Interior Department officials being ousted in a reorganization by the Nixon administration. He has come under fire from conservationists.

Michael McCloskey, executive director of the Sierra Club, said, "We are profoundly disturbed that somebody has been named who has none of the credentials we expected."

He added that he was disturbed because there was no evidence of the credentials "we had heard discussed with top officials of the Department of the Interior."

McCloskey and other conservation leaders said they had not been consulted about the new director and did not know him.

Advance Man

George Alderson, legislative director of the Friends of the Earth, a leading critic of Hartzog, had no immediate comment. His office said he would wait until the organization found out more about Walker, who has been an advance man for the President's travels at home and abroad.

Friends of the Earth called for Hartzog's resignation earlier this year, charging that he had engaged in a "giveaway" of some park lands, "curried favor with park concessionaires and permitted parks to be "destroyed through piecemeal developments" at a time when the public was seeking expanded outdoor recreation.

Stewart L. Brandborg, executive director of the Wilderness Society, said many environmentalists had hoped the new director would be a man of "professional background and broad environmental knowledge."

However, Brandborg said Walker had a "tremendous opportunity" and hoped that he would respond to Nixon's desire to fulfill a pledge to have an open government.

He said the Park Service had "fallen behind" in serving the people and hoped that Walker would be able to restore the spirit of Park Service employees to attack the problems of overcrowding, developing wilderness areas and other needed outdoor recreation facilities. "We wish him well," he said.

Apprehension

Daniel Poole of the Wildlife Management Institute said that "we have the normal concerns and apprehensions" over such a political appointment. Echoing other conservationists, he said, "we had hoped that the person selected would have a demonstrated knowledge and concern for the national park system, its philosophy, concept and principles."

Hertzog, who invited Walker to meet with the Park Service Staff, said that he is "a very attractive young man."

McCloskey said he hoped that Walker's "strong ties to the White House will draw support for the parks."

It was not necessary, he said, to have a professional career man from the ranks, but "I doubt that anyone in the environmental field ever heard of him."

'Dedicated'

Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton, in announcing Walker's appointment, said he had been selected by him "because he is a dedicated person of unusual talent and ability." Morton said Walker would be a "strong successor" to Hartzog.

"Ron is totally committed to leading the national park system into its second century," Morton said.

"The mission of our Park Service to conserve and preserve our natural and historical heritage and to provide educational and recreational opportunities for millions of visitors is one of the great challenges of our time."

Walker came into the government in 1959 as an assistant to Interior Secretary Walter Hickel. Hickel was dismissed by Nixon two years ago after he charged that the White House had alienated youth and ignored Cabinet officers.

Smiling Marble Sphinx Found

Athens, P. — A smiling marble sphinx from 7th century B.C. was uncovered by a farmer near the market place of ancient Corinth, the American School of Classical Studies announced Wednesday.

The sphinx, in excellent condition, is considered one of the most important finds in recent times, Prof. G. Williams of the school said.

"It's archeological value is immense, and there is certain to be worldwide interest in this find," he added.

Yes, Virginia, there is something besides eggnog.

We've heard that even the fat man in the red suit has become bored with it. Just last year he said, "Instead of being ho-ho-ho, eggnog is very ho-hum."

So here at Smirnoff, we've come up with four different drinks for you to give your guests at all your holiday parties this year.

They should take care of the parties you give. Now for the ones you go to, wouldn't it be nice to take your host and hostess a bottle of Smirnoff in its jolly gift carton? Then they can give you some interesting drinks in return.

Either way, Virginia, you have Smirnoff's best wishes for a happy and prosperous New Year.

1. If eggnog bores you because it's bland, try a Hot or Cold Mugwump. Dilute 1 tsp. instant coffee, 2 tsp. instant cocoa and 2 tsp. sugar in a tiny amount of hot water in an 8 oz. mug. To make a Cold Mugwump, add 1½ oz. Smirnoff, ice cubes and fill with milk. To make a Hot Mugwump, eliminate the ice cubes and fill mug with warm milk. Stir with cinnamon sticks, top with whipped cream and sprinkle with cinnamon. Makes 1 drink.

2. If eggnog bores you because it's white, try a Bloody Mary. Combine 1½ oz. Smirnoff, 3 oz. tomato juice, juice of ½ lemon, pinch each salt, pepper, celery salt and ½ tsp. Worcestershire sauce. Shake well with cracked ice and strain into a 6 oz. glass over ice cubes. Garnish with a cucumber wedge. Makes 1 drink.

3. If eggnog bores you because it's sweet, try a Bullshot. Combine 1 oz. Smirnoff Vodka, 2½ oz. beef bouillon and a dash of lemon in a double old-fashioned glass. Add ice cubes, stir, and garnish with lemon slice. Makes 1 drink.

4. If you're not quite prepared to junk tradition entirely, but think eggnog needs a little help, try our Smirnoff Eggnog.

Combine 1 qt. eggnog, 8 oz. Smirnoff Vodka, and 2 oz. of Arrow® Triple Sec. Shake or blend well, pour into punch cups, and sprinkle the top with freshly grated nutmeg. Makes 6 to 8 drinks.

NU Graduate Turns Broken Television Sets And Radios Into Works Of Art

Broken television sets and radios from the Salvation Army become works of art when put into the hands of Eric Abraham, a 1969 University of Nebraska-Lincoln graduate.

Abraham's exhibition, representing the effects of the media on Americans, is on display through Dec. 31 at the university Sheldon Memorial Art Gallery.

Some of Abraham's television sets and radios are covered with plastic representing the unreal and fake world sometimes portrayed by the media.

Clouds overhanging most of the art objects represent the same uneasiness. Abraham said, while lightning symbolizes the explosive power of the media in influencing people.

Even though all of the art works deal with sound, none of them produce sound, signifying that silence might be better than many of the things the media portray.

Abraham said that "the constant commercialism the media put out, especially on the rock and country western stations, places Americans in a 'carnival atmosphere'. However, much of what is said is not true."

"People have to make up their own minds about what is true because everything that the media puts out is represented as the truth, but, of course, much of it isn't," Abraham said.

Abraham received the bachelor of fine arts degree from Kansas City Art Institute in 1963 and the masters of fine arts degree from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln in 1969. He taught in the art department of Kansas State University from 1969 to 1971. Besides large art works which take about three days to complete, he said, he also makes ceramic objects based on the media theme.

TIME OUT

By Steve Gillispie
Star Sports Writer

Heck Report Encouraging

Creighton freshman basketball coach Mike Caruso is very encouraged by the showing of 7-0 Mike Heck of Papillion.

"Mike is doing quite well and better than we first anticipated," Caruso says. "We think he'll be playing varsity ball and starting next season."

Heck's development has been carefully planned and there is no rush according to Caruso.

"We're trying to put some weight on Mike's upper body with a weight program," he points out. "So far, Mike's only weak point has been his physical strength and stamina."

Although Heck has been playing in just freshmen games, he practices with the Bluejay varsity.

"We want Mike to get used to playing with the varsity at least in practice before we put him in a varsity game," Caruso explains. "We plan on letting Mike play varsity ball when we're way ahead or behind in a game."

"However, he won't be seeing varsity action until later in the season."

When Heck first reported for fall drills, Caruso admits the Creighton coaching staff had its doubts. "The way Mike was playing, we thought it would be at least two years before he'd be ready for varsity ball," Caruso says.

"But, Mike has shown tremendous improvement and we believe it's just a matter of time before he becomes a great player."

Attitude Great Asset

The Jay coaches have also been greatly impressed with Heck's attitude. "Mike is real quiet, modest and hard-working," Caruso says.

"He has all the physical tools, good shooting and rebounding, except we want a little more weight in his shoulders and chest."

Caruso notes that Heck has put on about 10 pounds and has become stronger in his legs. "Mike has been a lot better rebounder than we expected," he asserts.

The 7-0 freshman has been averaging about 15 rebounds and 25 points a game for Creighton.

The gentle Papillion giant has also been widely accepted by the student body. "Mike is living on campus in one of the dorms and we think this has helped him adjust to college life," Caruso says.

"And from all the things we've heard Mike has become one of the most popular guys in school."

Concordia Honors Gridders

Five players have been honored by their teammates on the Concordia football team. The quintet was chosen by a vote of the team members.

Record-breaking running back Randy Pospisil, who rushed for more than 1,000 yards and lineman Dave Polnick were picked as most valuable.

The most improved player award went to sophomore Armand Haak, a defensive tackle. Defensive rookie was linebacker Mark Koch and offensive rookie was tight end Gary Paszholz.

Reckewey Earns Starting Position For UK Meet

... FORMER LINCOLN EAST STANDOUT READY FOR KENTUCKY INVITATIONAL

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Nebraska basketball coach Joe Cipriano is hoping to pull another rabbit out of the magician's hat this week.

In Monday night's TCU contest, he inserted former Lincoln East standout Kent Reckewey into the starting lineup and the sophomore responded to his first NU starting berth with a 19-point performance as the Huskers toppled the Horned Frogs, 72-58.

This weekend, the Huskers travel to Lexington, Ky. to participate in the Kentucky Invitational. Cipriano would like nothing better than to discover another 19-point scorer for Friday night's match with Kentucky.

"I think he's (Reckewey) earned a starting spot," Cipriano said at Wednesday's press briefing. "He has a lot of offensive ability and we're assured of a good offensive effort whenever he's in."

"He gives us speed, too," added Cipriano. "We have two guards (the other is senior Tom Gregory) who can start an offense."

Cipriano also praised Omaha junior Lee Harris, who scored a career high 30 points against TCU. He added that Harris was stricken with a case of the flu Tuesday night, but hopefully will be at full strength for the Kentucky game.

Looking ahead to Kentucky, Cipriano labeled the UK Invitational as the "most prestigious tournament in the country."

"We've scouted them a couple of times and they have three high school all-Americans," he said. "I think they are probably up to their usual strong team."

The three prep standouts to whom Cipriano referred are senior center Jim Andrews (who leads the Wildcats with a 17.0 scoring average), sophomores Jimmy Dan Conner (with 10.0 scoring mark) and Bob Guyette, an 11.0 scoring average.

Although the Wildcats have won just one of four tests, Cipriano said their opposition has been extremely rugged.

"Iowa, Indiana and North Carolina haven't been beaten and they (UK) won on the road (at Michigan State)," he said. "I know they'll be hungry for a win."

"It takes a while to establish the new things their coach (first-year mentor Joe Hall) is trying to do," the NU boss said. They're using the press while before they used the mid-court trap and they're changing their offense."

Although he said the Husker effort was excellent against TCU in the Coliseum, Cipriano expressed disappointment at several Husker slack periods.

"We had some lulls, but I probably contributed to some of that with substitutions, but we got tired at the end of the first half," he said. "And during TCU's comeback we missed some shots that ordinarily drop for us."

The Huskers, with three victories in five outings, left Wednesday afternoon for Kentucky.

PADRES TO LEAVE S.D.?

Bavasi Slates Kuhn Meeting

... WASHINGTON POSSIBLE SITE

Washington (AP) — "The increasing possibility" of the San Diego Padres baseball franchise being shifted to Washington is reaching the critical discussion stage, The Evening Star-News reported Wednesday.

It will involve the question of what the nation's capital can offer in terms of a stadium lease, the Star-News said.

Padres president Buzzie Bavasi, complaining no one in authority for the Washington government has made him a rental offer, will have one spelled out for him Friday in a meeting with Commissioner Bowie Kuhn in New York the newspaper said.

Kuhn, along with Rep. B. F. Sisk, D-Calif., the chief intermediary in the talks, has on his desk an Armory Board lease described as "much better than anything" the old American League Senators asked for.

"I don't think we will have any trouble with the lease," said Bavasi, who is leaning more and more toward shifting to Washington, the Star-News said.

It added that Bavasi's unexpected meeting with Kuhn while San Diego municipal officials are still preparing to meet with him again to try and resolve Padres' problems there, strongly endorses Bavasi's reaction that he is "resigned to the possibility that we could open the 1973 season in Washington."

Sisk, in California, discounted thoughts that Bavasi is using Washington as a lever to obtain a better stadium lease with his San Diego landlords, according to the Washington Post.

Attendance has never reached the 800,000 mark which Bavasi said is needed to break even in San Diego. This season, the club said it drew 644,272 compared to 549,085 last year, 633,439 in 1970 and 613,327 in 1969.

And the Padres finished last again in the Western Division.

The San Diego Union said San Diego banker C. Arnold Smith has lost $2.5 million in interest on his $10 million loan in buying the Padres in 1968.

Another meeting is planned with Mayor Pete Wilson, Bavasi said, in an effort to reverse the city's decision to allow advertising panels in San Diego stadium in what Bavasi called "direct conflict with our radio broadcast sponsors."

A source close to the situation said, "Financial problems of the Padres go far, far beyond the costs of advertising panels."

A few days ago Bavasi said of Smith: "The man will have to decide whether he can go on losing money." For himself Smith says publicly only that he wants the Padres to stay if possible. A confidante said, though, that "Smith and Bavasi are leaning so far toward Washington they can almost dip their noses in the Potomac."

Bowl-Bound Tigers Scrimmaging Inside

Columbia, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Tigers, getting ready for the Fiesta Bowl Dec. 23, staged a 60-minute scrimmage inside Wednesday, the first hard hitting since the Kansas football game Nov. 25.

Coach Al Onofrio said the squad looked good, adding there was no injury problems.

Thursday's practice plans were indefinite, Onofrio said.

Wooden Illness Termed 'Mild' Heart Condition

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Coach John Wooden of the top-ranked UCLA Bruins has a "mild heart condition," his doctor reported Wednesday.

Despite the ailment, he is expected to return soon to full activity.

The 62-year-old Wooden was admitted to St. John's Hospital in nearby Santa Monica last Sunday night with what was diagnosed as a gastrointestinal upset.

He was reported in satisfactory condition but remained hospitalized for tests.

"John has a mild heart condition for which he has had extensive studies, the results of which we are all well satisfied with," a hospital spokesman said. "We anticipate his return to full activity in the near future. He may possibly be released this weekend."

A UCLA spokesman said Wooden's physician, Dr. Ralph Irwin, stressed that the term heart attack not be used to describe Wooden's ailment. The coach had no history of heart problems, the spokesman said.

The Bruins, who are seeking their seventh consecutive national college basketball championship, are 4-0 this season. This is Wooden's 25th season at UCLA and he has never missed a game.

But Wednesday's report indicated it is doubtful Wooden will be able to direct his team in its next game Saturday night against UC-Santa Barbara.

In Wooden's absence, the team is being handled by assistant coaches Gary Cunningham and Frank Arnold.

'Majors Not In Running For SMU Post'

Compiled From News Wires
Dallas — The search for a new head football coach and athletic director at Southern Methodist University appeared to be near an end Tuesday.

One source close to SMU said Iowa State Coach Johnny Majors' name had been taken off the prospect list, but Majors himself told friends he was still being considered.

Other than Majors, the names mentioned most often in the SMU search are Barry Switzer (assistant at Oklahoma) and Dave Smith (head coach at Oklahoma State).

It was learned that Majors told a friend last week that the SMU job was his if he wanted it. Majors' Iowa State club, which lost its last three regular season games for a 5-5 record, meets Georgia Tech in the Liberty Bowl.

Early this week a figure close to Southwest Conference football and to SMU said Majors' name had been stricken from the list of possible coaches by the selection committee.

When this word was relayed to Majors, however, Majors said he thought he was still in the running.

North Carolina State's Lou Holtz, and Washington's Jim Owens, who have come to town for interviews, are not considered likely candidates.

Meanwhile if Majors becomes the football coach at the University of Pittsburgh, he may get his own television show as well.

Pitt Athletic Director Casimir Myslinski has confirmed that he has spoken to Majors.

In addition, a local television executive said he had met with Majors on his visit to Pittsburgh last week.

Stutzman Scores TKO Win In Comeback After Injury

... STEVE PELSTER DECISIONS GRINDSTAFF

By RANDY EICKHOFF
Star Sports Writer

There's no mistaking Ron Stutzman's goal—the Midwest Golden Gloves heavyweight title.

But first, Stutzman has to win the Southeast District title and that may not prove easy as the 202-pound Easterday fighter has been plagued by leg injuries for most of the boxing season.

"This was my first fight this year," Stutzman said, ruefully pointing to his heavily-banded right knee. "I was training for the Lincoln Pro-Am (last October) over in Omaha with (Morris) Jackson and (Ron) Stander and here some ligaments in it so I haven't been able to do any training at all till now."

Stutzman, the defending Southeast District heavyweight champion, brushed aside the months of inactivity Wednesday night at Pershing Auditorium and scored a TKO victory over Barry Moss, 175, Reformatory, in 1:18 of the first.

"I hit him with left to the body and an overhand right," Stutzman explained. "But I think the left to the body was the one that hurt him."

Moss turned his back and grabbed the ropes as Stutzman bored in, landing two more sledgehammer blows much to his later dismay.

"I'm really sorry I did that," Stutzman apologized after. "I was a little excited . . . it was my first fight of the year and I guess I was trying a little too hard . . . I'm real sorry about that."

Stutzman, hobbling and weaving and muttering to himself, carried the fight to the lighter Moss early and forced the pace to set up his winning combinations.

Southpaw Steve Pelster, 145, Petersburg, won a decision over Terry Grindstaff, 150, Omaha Foxhole, but found the going a little rough in places.

"He hurt me in the second," Pelster admitted after the fight. "But I think I could've taken him out if the fight went a little longer."

The pair stood toe-to-toe throughout the entire fight, belting each other with hard, jolting blows with neither giving ground before a crowd of 405.

Pelster said he was a little surprised that Grindstaff was able to take some of his harder punches and still come back.

"He was easy to hit cause he came in wide open," Pelster said. "And he really surprised me by taking some of those shots."

Denver (AP) — The acting chairman of Colorado Citizens to Retain the Winter Games says his group will abandon on Dec. 23 its effort to keep the 1976 Winter Olympics in Colorado unless the public demonstrates tangibly that it wants the games.

Darrell Oliver said his organization has contacted five service clubs to determine whether they are willing to supply manpower to continue the petition drive, and also will closely monitor its volume of mail to determine support for the Games.

"If we have four bags of mail in three days," Oliver said, "we'll know there's a trend in favor of hosting the games. If we don't have a trend established by Dec. 23, there will be no need for us to continue."

Oliver said his organization has gathered "a little less than 40,000" signatures so far despite a shortage of personnel necessary for intensive solicitation of Olympic support.

Oliver and the founder of the group, Denver lawyer Harry Arkin, have aintained that voters last November voted specifically to prohibit use of Colorado and Denver tax funds to help finance the Games, but did not vote on whether they favored holding the Games in the state.

Rodgers Mobbed By Fans

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

New York City — Johnny Rodgers waded through scores of autograph seekers while his parents and grandmother struggled against airline problems to arrive here Wednesday for two days of Heisman ceremonies.

Rodgers, the winner of this year's Heisman Trophy and the nation's number one college football player, accompanied by teammate Rich Glover, who finished third in the Heisman balloting, ran into the autograph hounds as soon as they arrived at Lincoln's Municipal Airport Wednesday morning.

After spending fifteen minutes signing autographs before leaving Lincoln, the two Husker stars were kept busy during an hour flight to Chicago signing their names for passengers on the airplane.

And that signing exercise continued even as the two walked around in O'Hare airport during the layover in Chicago.

Rodgers and Glover were supposed to be joined in Chicago by Johnny's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Jones of Omaha, and his grandmother, Mrs. Margaret Stewart of Minneapolis.

However, their flight out of Omaha was delayed because they missed the Chicago connection to New York City.

After being booked on a later flight out of Chicago, that flight was canceled, and they arrived in New York City at six p.m., three hours later than scheduled.

However, they did make it in time to join the Heisman Trophy winner at a Wednesday night dinner dance at the Downtown Athletic Club.

Rodgers not only was the top attraction as the nation's number one football player but also teamed with his mother to be the number one hit on the dance floor and later turned singer to entertain the members of the Downtown Athletic Club.

The bandleader put an end to rumors that Rodgers had been accompanied here by his fiancée, announcing that Rodgers' dancing partner was his mother.

Rodgers will be honored Thursday night at a formal dinner at which time he will be presented with the Heisman Trophy.

The featured speaker at the black-tie dinner will be Lt. Col. Pete Dawkins, the former Heisman Trophy winner.

Nebraska was allocated about 13,000 tickets for the third straight trip to Miami for NU and Pittenger says he feels there are three reasons why there has not yet been a sellout this year.

"It is the third time we are going to the same bowl, we are not playing to be No. 1, and we are not No. 1 in the conference," he explained.

Pittenger said he believes all the tickets will be sold but "we won't be turning anyone away this year."

Coach Resigns
Northridge, Calif. (AP) — Rod Humenuik has resigned as head football coach at Northridge State after two years and a record of 10 victories and 12 defeats. The school announced Wednesday.

Time Magazine Cites Nebraska Standouts

New York — The Nebraska trio of Johnny Rodgers, Rich Glover and Willie Harper have received another football honor.

The three Husker seniors have been named to Time magazine's all-American team, which is picked by pro football scouts.

Here's what the pro scouts had to say about the Nebraska trio in time magazine:

Johnny Rodgers — "Rodgers, the 1972 Heisman Trophy winner, has 'all the moves' and then some. Hummingbird quick, he ranks among the nation's leaders in receiving, scoring and punt returning. Though some scouts have reservations about his size and durability, most agree that 'he will be dangerous whenever you play him.'"

Rich Glover — "Glover, a two-time all-American, has been unstoppable as a middle guard for the Cornhuskers. Scouts predict that he will be just as menacing as an outside linebacker. Though a mite small for that position, he may 'more than make up for it with his speed, range and knack for diagnosing plays.'"

Willie Harper — "Although a defensive end, Harper will be recommended by most scouts as a linebacker."

Here is the complete Time all-American team:

Quarterback: Bert Jones, Louisiana State; Gary Huff, Florida State; Joe Ferguson, Arkansas; Don Strick, Virginia Tech.
Running Back: Otis Armstrong, Purdue; Sam Cunningham, Southern Cal; Chuck Foreman, Miami, Florida; Greg Pruitt, Oklahoma.
Wide Receiver: Johnny Rodgers, Nebraska; Steve Holden, Arizona State.
Tight End: Charles Young, Southern Cal; Billy Joe Dupree, Michigan State.
Guard: John Hightower, Alabama; Pete Adams, Southern Cal.
Tackle: Paul Seymour, Michigan; Jerry Seymour, Texas.
Center: Tom Brannan, Oklahoma.

Defense
Ends: Wally Chambers, Eastern Kentucky; John Maluszak, Tampa; Willie Harper, Nebraska.
Tackles: Greg Marx, Notre Dame; Dave Butz, Purdue.
Linebackers: Steve Brown, Oregon State; Jim Youngblood, Tennessee Tech; Rich Glover, Nebraska.
Cornerbacks: Jackie Wallace, Arizona; Burgess Owens, Miami, Florida; James Thomas, Florida State; Mike Holmes, Texas Southern.
Safety: Cotton Bryant, Colorado; Brad VanPelt, Michigan State.
Specialists: Ray Guy, Southern Mississippi.

Prep Forecaster Sees Fairbury Over Crete

... CLASS B POWERS TO MEET THURSDAY

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Writer

Based on last weekend, logic would dictate a Crete win over Fairbury Thursday night in the state's feature game of the week.

Crete handily disposed of Lincoln Pius X, 69-48, one night before Pius X pressed Fairbury late in the game before losing, 59-47.

But comparative scores probably mean little in the rematch between the two Class B powers.

Fairbury, led by all-stater Bob Siegel and 6-5 Bob Parks, will try to avenge last season's district tournament finals loss, which marked the end of a 38-game winning streak, longest ever for a Class B basketball school.

Crete may have an edge in hometown support since the game is set for Doane College Coach Walt Harris' club also has all-stater Randy Wenz and sharpshooter Tim Edwards back from last year.

Neither team has been tested so far. Crete has beaten Ord, 73-50, and David City, 76-58, besides Pius X. Fairbury has coasted past Hebron (96-48), Tecumseh (64-40) and Beatrice (72-50) besides Pius X.

The game has all the makings for a classic early-season matchup. Although Crete may have more individual depth, the prep picker has decided Fairbury will prevail.

In games involving Capital City teams, he sees Lincoln Northeast over Lincoln High Friday night at Pershing Auditorium, Lincoln East over Lincoln Pius X Saturday night at Pershing and Lincoln Southeast over North Platte in a Trans-Nebraska Conference game Saturday night at Johnson Gym.

Crete-Fairbury isn't the only Class B matchup in the prep spotlight this weekend. Aurora and York, a pair of 3-0 teams, will meet in a key Central 10 Conference test Friday night. The prep picker favors the hometown York club.

He also sees Omaha Tech over Omaha Ryan and Omaha Rummel over Omaha Central in important Friday night games. The Saturday night headliner is defending state champion Columbus (2-0) at Millard (3-1). Wee look for Millard to win the Apollo Conference contest.

In some of the better Friday night area games, the prep picker sees David City Aquinas over Wahoo Neumann, Elmwood over Southeast Consolidated, Hampton over McCool Junction, Wymore Southern over Hebron, Tecumseh over Johnson-Brock and Wilford over Raymond Central.

Friday
Hastings St. Cecilia at Adams Central.

Villanova Keeps Football

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Villanova University's football coach Lou Ferry, has to start playing catch-up in recruiting prospective players for his newly reaffirmed team.

"I don't think it hurt us that much," Ferry said regarding the effect of football's previously uncertain future at the suburban Philadelphia school. Villanova announced Wednesday that its trustees had voted to retain and expand the football program.

"It slowed us down, Ferry conceded. "Very few (prospects) make commitments in December. It may have set us back as far as going on the road (for out-of-area players)," he continued. Before the vote of confidence Wednesday, football at Villanova appeared to be dying. The Wildcats were only 2-9 during the 1972 season and fan support was disappointing.

The program's deficit amounted to some $300,000 for the year.

An ad hoc committee was then formed to study the future of the program.

In a six-hour meeting Tuesday night university trustees accepted the recommendation of the ad hoc committee and a special athletic committee of the development council.

In addition to the improved football program, Villanova will seek formation of a league of Eastern football schools, the trustees said in their resolution.

"Our athletic department will be reorganized to execute an overall philosophy which will be established by the board of trustees," the official statement said. "Special emphasis will be given to the improvement of intramural facilities."

KU Coaches To Receive 3-Year Pacts

Lawrence, Kan. (AP) — New three-year contracts have been awarded University of Kansas coaches Don Fambrough, Ted Owens and Bob Timmons.

Fambrough, head football coach, was given an annual salary of $26,000 in his new three-year pact. He was receiving $24,000 under the old contract which had a year to run.

The action by the KU Board gave Owens and Timmons written contracts for the first time.

Previously Owens, head basketball coach, and Timmons, head track coach, had operated with one-year oral contracts.

No salary adjustments were made for Owens or Timmons. Owens' salary is $21,600 a year; Timmons, $15,800.

Pay raises went to all football assistants.

Sandy Buda, lowest paid member of the staff, received a $1,000 a year raise to $10,000.

Other assistants were given increases of $500 per year.

Retiring Parker Sets Fielding Mark

San Francisco (AP) — Wes Parker, who was 33 last month when he announced his retirement from baseball and the Los Angeles Dodgers, leaves with a major league record in fielding for first basemen—a 996 per cent mark for his career.

Frank McCormick, who spent most of his baseball career with Cincinnati, held the old record at .995.

In 1972, nine-year veteran Parker topped the National League's first basemen in fielding for the fifth time, league headquarters noted in releasing official fielding statistics Wednesday.

Don Money, who played third, second and left field for the Philadelphia Phillies in 1971, settled down to third base last year and made only 10 errors while leading in fielding percentage for the position with .978. The league record for fewest errors by a third baseman had been held since 1964 by Bob Aspromonte, who had 11 with Houston.

Money's neighbor on the left side of the Phils' infield, shortstop Larry Bowa, made only nine errors—two fewer than last year when he set a National League record. Bowa also fielded a record 9874, bettering his league record of .9869 in 1971.

Rick Monday, who spent six seasons in the American League before moving to the Chicago Cubs from Oakland, topped NL outfielders in fielding with .996.

In other positions the leading fielders were Joe Morgan, Cincinnati, second base, .990; Randy Hundley, Chicago, catcher, .995, less than a point better than Fred Kendall of San Diego and Tommy John, Los Angeles pitcher, who handled 56 chances without error.

Bench Moves From Intensive Care Unit

Cincinnati (AP) — Cincinnati Reds' catcher Johnny Bench was moved from the intensive care unit at Christ Hospital Wednesday as doctors verified a lesion removed from his right lung Monday was benign.

Bench was assigned to a private room where, according to Reds' team physician Dr. George Ballou, he will remain for about six more days.

"The permanent microscopic section of the tissue removed has confirmed that there was no evidence of any malignancy," Ballou said in a terse medical bulletin.

He (Bench) spent a very comfortable night. He is being moved from the intensive care unit into a regular room."

Bench underwent two and one-half hours of surgery Monday for removal of a lesion found during routine X-rays given the Reds in September.

Bench was told when the spot was discovered that it was, in all probability, benign. He decided to play the rest of the regular season as well as the National League playoffs and the World Series before scheduling the surgery.

The league's most valuable player in 1970 and 1972, Bench is expected to be sufficiently recovered from the surgery to join the Reds for the opening of spring training in late February.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE - Here's how to work it:

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
